The story of the convention is soon to be told. The two clocks on the north and south walls respectively do not quite agree, and there is some speculation as to which will rule, but Chairman Berner settles it by selecting the most advanced.

There were some surprises over the organization. Judge Kiddoo, who was selected by the Nesbitt and Hunnicutt caucus outvoted Dr. DeJarnette two for one, but, though intended so, this vote is no test of strength. Emmett Womack was led to believe that he was to be permanent chairman, but he changed his mind, and in an exceedingly graceful and happy little speech said so.

The convention evinced a desire to rush things through that was hard on those who were down on the slate for the nominating speeches. John Temple Graves's sudden indisposition was unfortunate, but his words were eloquent and fitting. Du-Pont Guerry, Smith, of Oglethorpe, and Judge Frank Little all spoke gracefully, but the cream of the nominating speeches came before the Lester - Anderson Steve Clay presented the race. name of his gallant fellow-townsman, and never was the brilliant young statesman from Cobb heard to better advantage. His soul was in his work, and the burning eloquence of his tribute to Judge Lester were, in the wisdom of the convention, got into the hearts of his hearers. That was a vote-making speech, two, and it had true, and the ticket is one to command much to do with the result of the contest. Henry Richardson's response in behalf of Colonel Anderson was splendid. In the face of what he must have known to be the defeat of his man, he paid brilliant tribute to the bravery, the purity, the great ability of Macon's great lawyer, and he received the heartiest applause, even from those who were about to vote against

One more speech, and then to the work of the convention in detail. That was the speech of the man selected to bear the standard of democracy in this campaign-W. J.

Northen. It was a grand speech, the speech of a statesmen. Democratic doctrines were there enunciated with an earnestness and unction which showed that the utterances came from the heart, and the hearty applauses which greeted them showed that the speaker was in thorough accord with the people of his state. It was a speech worth hearing, worth reading, worth remembering. Now for the convention.

At 12 o'clock, Chairman Robert Berner, of the state democratic committee, ascended to the chair and called the convention to order As the echoes of his gavel resounded through the convention hall, the uproar and confus was instantly hushed, and everybody sat with eagerness and silence to hear the opening speech.

CHAIRMAN BEENER'S SPEECH

CHAIRMAN BEENER'S SPEECH

Chairman Berner spoke as follows:
My Fellow Countrymen: The hour fixed for your convening has arrived. It becomes my duty as chairman of the executive committee to call this convention to order.

I greet you today, fellow citizens, in the name of a happy and progressive people, and a united and triumphant democracy.

It is with a patriotic pleasure and gratification that I say unto you, there is no dissension in our ranks. It is a solid phalanx for democracy.

Democrats everywhere submit in faithful loyalty to the will of the party. Its harmonious ranks are prepared for every conflict. And I entreat you to join with me in the solemn hope and prayer that neither republican nor independent will be able to stund in that day against the solid legions of democracy. You have gathered here for a great and patriotic purpose, It is customary on these occasions to indulge is much fraternal counsel. But a single glance tells me that that this is to be a convention of work, and not of words. I hardly deem it necessary to consume the time with counsels for harmony. I look into your earnest, patriotic faces and I feel that the fortunes of the democratic party are safe in your loyal hands. You come from all the avenues of life. You represent all the interests of the great state, thu varied as may be your callings and interests, the great heart of this convention I know warms and thrills with one common purpose, the success of the pray, the perpetuity of its principles, the good and the glory of this blessed old commonwalth. Your wisdom and patriotism will preserve inviolate these great principles of free and honest government which are embodied in the democratic party, and which have secured to Georgia the inestimable blessings! enjoyed by her people.

The creed of democracy, grounded in the divine right of every man to pursue unmolested and unmolesting his substantial happiness is at once the simplest and the sublimest of all political faiths, its perfect wisdom, patriotism and justice, have commended it to the hearts of all men everywhere and at all times. Pure and undefiled democracy consists in this: The supremacy of the states in the management of their own affairs, and determined distrust of all centralization; the fearless reform of the tariff and death to all protection; equal justice to all sections and classes, and special privileges to none; taxation for purposes of revenue only, and that dixed by rigid economy; the honest expenditure of the public money, and that only for necessary and constitutional purposes. Eternal enmity to all monopoly, and the exaltation of the citizen above the "power of money to oppress;" a currency commensurate in volume to the wants of commerce and protected by wise legislation from the sudden and selfish control of capital. Such a party, with such a set of principles, can never perish from the earth. Wherever truth has a priest, this faith will be taught at heraltar; wherever humanity has a friend, it will be read with kindling interest; wherever liberty has a defender, it will inspire his fainting heart. To these principles, we have, as a people, Inned our faith and our hopes. These are they which have secured to Georgia the benediction of wise and economic administrations. These are they that constructed this capitol, marvel of beauty and comfort, but marvelous above all things in this day of public extravagance, that it was built within the limit of the app ropriation and without the shadow of suspicion. These are they that have exitted Georgia and her pure and honest government above her sister states in this age of official corruption and commercial politics. These are the rehest heritages tequeathed us by the fathers; and the noblest confort that warms the patriot's heart in this day of national extravagance and national corruption is the hope that the day hastens when the assurand triumph of these great principles will cover this country with their blessings, and restore the republic of the fathers where we want to the self-marked plants.

I repeat, you Price Gilbert, other members of the Musfraternal confidence.

Chairman Berner's speech was followed by a perfect storm of applause. THE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN. Delegate Hardeman, of Jones, was nominated for temporary chairman by Dr. T. J. De Jarnette, of Putnam, and the nomination was seconded by several voices.

Judge William Gibson, of Richmond, in a short speech said he desired to nominate a man who had unswervingly stood by the principles so firmly laid down by Chairman Berner, and that man was the Hon. W. E. Kiddoo, of Randolph.

The nomination was seconded by Mr. Roberts, of Douglassville. The chairman directed a call of the roll for a vote on the two nominations. The vote proceeded with but little incident until Mr. Kiddoo received 175 votes, when an outburst of applase marked his certain victory, only 176 votes being necessary to received the election.

The complete vote stood: Kiddoo, 216; DeJarnette, 105.

Mr. Joe Gross moved that Mr. Kiddoo be elected by acclamation. This was carried.

Hon. W. A. Harris moved that a committee of five be appointed to excert Mr. Kiddoo to the chair, and the following names were put on that committee: W. A. Harris, Judge William Gibson, W. T. Roberts, W. A.

Broughton, and W. H. Harrison.
After being escorted to the chair, Judge Kiddoo made a striking speech that rung like the true metal of democracy.

JUDGE KIDDOO'S SPRECH. He was greeted with applause as he faced

He was greeted with applause as he faced the assembly, standing at the speaker's desk. Gentlemen of the democratic convention, said he, for the honor you have just conferred upon me I return my heartfelt thanks. It affords ne pleasure to meet so many representative people of the state. We assemble after a period of years when the people have been, and are, happy and prosperous. From the seaboard to the Chattahoochee we have been blessed by Providence with many good things. We meet in a state of profound peace. I had hoped that our conduct was such that our national brethren of the north would know by this time that the government had no truer sons than the democrats of Georgia. [Applause].

But we find our old enemy again advancing to the attack, not in war and with warlike instruments. They are trying to take away our liberties under the guise of law, and to control our domestic offairs. They purpose to put aliens amongst us who will say, after we have voted, how we have voted, with no appeal from their decision. This is a trying time. There is an old democratic proverb of which I am reminded in this connection—that the least we are governed the better we are governed. It is a touchstone that will do to try our measures by, and if we apply that always we can't go wrong. The position with which you have honored me, gentlemen, is an arduous one. I call upon every member of the convention to keep order and to work in harmony to the good of the party. [Applause.]

THE TEMPORARY SECRETARIES.

Hon. W. A. Harris moved that Messrs. Mark A. Hardman, H. H. Cabaniss and Eugene Speer, be made temporary secretaries. The motion passed and the secretaries took their places. Somebody moved that Hon. W. A. Harris be added to the list, but he decided in his inimitable style, saying: "I have a more honorable duty to perform, which is to represent on this floor, the grand old county of Worth."

Some delegate moved that the democratic press be added to the list of secretaries, but the otion was lost, failing to receive a second.

Both nominations were eloquently seconded.
"I want to correct here," said Mr. Hoke Smith, as he gained the recognition of the chair, "certain statements that have been published as coming from me concerning the race of Colonel Womack for chairman of this convention. The words attributed to me were not used. I have always believed that Colonel Womack's election to this place would have no bearing whatever upon the next senatorial election. I am also satisfied that his election would make no change in the platform the party may adopt. If this impression has been made I want to correct it in justice to myself and to Mr. Wemack.

The election of a permanent chairman was then taken up, and consumed half an hour. Mr. Atkinson ran ahead from the outset, and it was found out that he would be nominated. When he reached 176 votes it was moved that the ballot be closed.

Colonel Womack was quickly on his feet. "Mr. Chairman," he said, "at the earnest solicitations of about one hundred and eighty of my warm friends and admirers I desire to retire from this race. I have been running, but it seems to be away from the chair, instead of towards it. Business engagements, sir, demand my presence elsewhere, and I shall make myself conspicuous here by my absence from this convention hall. I move that Colonel Atkinson be elected by acclamation."

Colonel Womack's remarks, delivered in the style so characteristic, brought down the house, and the hall echoed with wildest shouts and laughter.

Mr. Atkinson was declared elected, and was John E. Donaldson, G. W. Owens, P. B. Trammell and R. H. Dodd.

THE PERMANENT CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

John E. Donaldson, G. W. Owens, P. B. Trammell and R. H. Dodd.

THE PERMANENT CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

He made a ringing speech, as follows:

Fellow Countrymen: I jam glad to be able to meet with Georgians in an era in our history when there is prosperity in the land. I congratulate you that the finances of your state are in a healthy condition. I congratulate you as Georgians upon the fact that this grand old state can float her debt? In the market of the world with an interest of 3½ per cent. [Applause.] 1 congratulate you that the last legislature has disposed of the problem that has hung over Georgia for years, and has leased your road with wisdom and with profit, and that, as a result of that lease, there will be in the near future from that property $20,000 a year that will be poured into your school coffers and bless the lives of the children of Georgia. I congratulate you upon the fact that the disposition of the question leaves Georgia today where the people may feel confident in saying that the legislature in the near future will neither stay as long nor draw as much pay as they have for the last two years. The disposition of that question, and of the legislation that necessarily followed the new constitution of 1878, leaves us where there can be no question of the fact that the session must be shortened—the legislation diminished. We are here to look back upon the work of the past, but mostly to look forward and see what there is in the future for Georgia, for Georgians and the grand old democratic party. [Appiause.]

You are here today to fix a platform upon which the party of Georgia can stand and on which they can go to victory—to fix a platform that, in aecordance with the phrase that comes down to us from the time of Jefferson, fix it according to those principles of democracy which we have been taught to love and which our fathers loved and contended for [applause]—to fix a platform that provers of Georgia a platform that recognizes, the farmer, the law and the plant of the farmer of the manufactur

NOMINATING COLONEL NORTHEN.

When Colonel John Temple Graves arose in the right of the hall and addressed the chair, everybody knew that it was to nominate the next governor of Georgia.

Colonel Graves was recognized by the chair.

Silence hovered over the convention hall and around the galleries, filled with throngs of ladies and gentlemen. Dozens of voices shouted: "Take the stand!" "Get on "In deference to the wishes of the convention," said Colonel Graves, after a second's hesitation, "I will take the stand."

Escorted to the stand by the chairman's side, Colonel Graves spoke as follows:

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES'S SPECH.

Mr. President: To the walting ear of this convention I bring a name that stands for sound policies in Georgia.

The hour that fronts us touches the culmination of a career that in all its useful course has typed the strength and sturdy virtues of the state. Firm as her hills in principle, fruitful in service as her valleys with corn, open as her rivers and clear as her skies, for fifty-four years this patrial life has pulsed in helpful unison with the glory and the growth of Georgia. If it has not dazzled with the meteor-flash of genuius, it has kindled with the enlightened judgment that endures. Whereever his hands have wrought, they have wrought to helpful ends, and whenever his brain has builded, it has builded in consecration to a nob'e purpose. His patient industry, his balanced temper, and his executive abilities have brought the agricultural society to the high tide of its prosperity, and isshioned its annual expositions into unusual excellence. In his several terms of service in the legislature of the state he bore himself with such Roman virtue that his course became the measure of civic honor, and his name the synonym of judicious common sense. When, in earlier years, he sat in the responsible chair of the teacher, he held his talents as he held the rod, in the high injunction of Solomon, and among the hundreds of Georgia youths who date their inspiration to the even wisdom of his speech, not one is more his dabor than the pupil whose lips today in grateful privilege bear him to these loit-iest-faurels of the estate.

When the history of politics in Georgia is written, there will not be found a cleaner and gallanter race than that whose victor walks untitled and unchallenged to the chair of state. Poised in consolous rectitude, serene in perfect record, this son of Hancock did not fear to put his candidacy to the ing weak, as his faltering voice but feebly re-

G. N. LESTER. sponded to his beautiful thoughts so roundly shaped. This created intense excitement and on all sides were heard expressions of sympa thy for the gallant and eloquent orator who was undoubtedly a sick man.

He continued to speak, however, until it was too much for him, and staggering backward, he would have fallen but for being caught by hose nearest to him.

Overcome by the intense heat, he was not permitted for some moments to continue his speech, and perhaps would not have been able to have done so then, had it not been for a motion made by some one near him that the convention adjourn.

"I want to hear the grand speech I know my friend will make," said Bill Harris as he supported the motion to adjourn.

As he heard this, Colonel Graves bravely arose again and briefly closed his speech by placing before the convention the name of Georgia's next governor.

"I had an indistinct feeling that the convention in its kindness toward me was about to do something against its own wishes," explained Colonel Graves afterwards, "and I was determined to prevent it." His brave words, as he presented Colonel Northen's name, called forth cheer after cheer.

COLOLEL SMITH'S SPEECH. Colonel James M. Smith, of Oglethorpe, econded the nomination of Mr. Northen in a seconded the nomination of Mr. Northen in a fitting speech. He said:

About two years ago the farmers of Georgia began a movement which had for its main object the improvement of their condition mentally, so-cially and financially. In thus helping themselves they had no desire to injure another class of their fellow-citizens. The constant formations of trusts, combinations and monopolies made it imperatively necessary for them to organize. Thus the alliance was formed. It was born of the necessities of the times.

atively necessary for them to organize. Thus the alliance was formed. It was born of the necessities of the times.

It was never intended to weaken, to divide, to disrupt or in any manner to interfere with the harmony of the democratic party. In order for the great aims and purposes of the organization to be more effectually accomplished, some of its members have been called upon to fill offices of trust and honor under both our state and national governments. It is said a revolution has been wrought. If so it is certainly the most peaceable and harmonious of any of which history gives any account.

The scene which we witness here today has, perhaps, never been witnessed before in Georgia, and likely will not be again soon, if ever. A gentleman is presented for the bighest office in the gift of the people, upon whom all classes not only can, but have united. With him everybody is satisfied. To have builded a character so broad, so pure, so upright, is an honor to the whole state, and the state does honor to herself to call, unanimously, such a person to preside as her chief executive. His life and character have been an example to all her people. While in some of our sister states which will last through generations, no shisper of grand old county of Hancock one of her farmers to preside as the chief executive of the great state of Georgia.

As one who has devoted his time and whatever ability he possessed to the agricultural interests of the country, I join, with all my heart, in all the felicity of the occasion, and trust and hope we have brighter days abead. One word more and I am done. To be the successor of any of Georgia's governor's is an honor, but to be the successor of General John B. Gordon, who in many respects is the greatest man Georgia ever produced, is an honor which seldom falls to the lot of man. We feel that we present to the people of Georgia a man, in the person of the Hon. W. N. Northen, of the country of Hancock, worthy to be his successor. Pardon me for transgressing upon your time. These remarks occurred to me in an impromptu manner as being somewhat germane to the occasion. I second the nomination of Hon. W. J. Northen for governor of Georgia.

Colonel Smith's speech was continually interrupted with applause, and was followed with much cheering. The convention was with much cheering. The convention was inclined to cut short speech-making, but Colonel Smith succeeded in making his speech.

MR. DUFONT GUERRY'S SPEECH.

MR. DUPONT GUERRY'S SPEECH.

Mr. Guerry, as a delegate from Bibb county, made a ringing speech that won golden opinions from overybody at the convention.

I have come to represent in part the county of Bibb, he said. A county that has been misconstrued so some extent, but a county, thank God, that is fair, progressive, and above all, democratic. [Applause.] She had her first choice for governor of Georgia in Hon. Thomas Hardeman, but like herself she was too unselfish to insist against the democratic choice of so many other counties which are in common with herself democratic through and through. [Applause.]

She comes today to offer her hand to the democracy of Georgia, without malice to any, and with gord will to all. We are one Caucassian people, bounded by ties of puractism and this s no time to be divided.

The delegates from Bibb are not here simply to join in this nomination of Mr. Northen, but we are here to pledge to that stainless patriot our unlimited support ever after this in the government of this empire state, and press him on to the perfect completion of his duty to his God, to his country and his people.

Mr. B. Bateman made a brief speech as a delegate from Houston country, enloyizing Mr.

Judge Frank L. Little, of Hancock, spoke as a delegate from Mr. Northen's home county. He spoke as follows, seconding the

as a delegate from Mr. Northen's home county. He spoke as follows, seconding the nomination of Mr. Northen:

Mr. President: Before this convention shall proceed to ballot on the nomination made, I crave permission to volos the gratitude of Hancock county for the high honor you are about to confer upon her distinguished son. These sons have illustrated all the walks of honorable endeavor. Fifty years ago she gave the state a covernor in the person of William Rabun. To Alabama she gave the states a covernor in the person of William Rabun. To Alabama she gave Dickson H. Lewis, who became a United States senator. Walter T. Colquitt was born upon her soil, himself a famous orator and senator and father of Alfred H. Colquitt, who has by turns been citizen, general, governor and senator. Under her sod sleep today two monumental Georgians. Judge Linton Stephens, jurist and statesman, and Bishop George F. Pierce, one of the most eloquent and useful preachers of any age or country.

Georgia and Georgians have witnessed no such campaign as this. For months the spirit of opposition to our honored countryman was active, earnest and aggressive, and made every possible effort to embody itself in the person of a conspicuous leader. It summoned J. C. C. Black, the Cicero of Georgia orators, but he declined. It summoned deneral Clement A. Evans, one of the knightliest heroes of the lost cause, but he lifted himself into an attitude of the Black, the Cicero of Georgia orators, but he declined. It summoned General Clement A. Evans, one of the knightliest heroes of the lost cause, but he lifted himself into an attitude of the moral sublime, when his loyalty to the commission of his Divine Master made him prefer obedience to the gospel call to all the crowns and kingdoms and honors which this earth can bestow. Colonel Livingston was called, but preferred to lead the column of the fifth Congressional district. Last, but not least, Colonel Hardeman, the old war horse from Bibb scented the battle from afar and leaned into the fray, but succumbed to the hand of disease, leaving the thousands who honor him all over Georgia to lament his disability, and to fear that this,

"Our struck eagle, stretched upon the plain, No more through rolling clouds may soar ag

"Our struck eagle, stretched upon the plain, No more through rolling clouds may soar again."

And so every element of opposition is spent and silent, like the storm wave that breaks its fury against the mighty rock, or, if you please, like the eagle who strikes with bold but unavailing wing the tempest which hurries him away, and every democratic vote in Georgia here to pay tribute to the worth of William J. Northen—to give assurance that the man and the hour have met.

We claim for Colonel Northen that he merits, this crowning honor, and especially the unanimity of its bestowal. He is a broad-minded, elear-headed cultured gentleman—a man of courage, conscience and convictions, whose heart reaches out to every calling and every industry that looks to the upbuilding of Georgia's civilization. To all classes he will accord equal justice—to none special favors or privileges. His life has been one of carnest labor and useful result. In every field of his endeavor—in college, in the schoolroom, in the farm, in the agricultural uplift of his county, in the administration of the state agricultural society, in the halls of legislation—he has been crowned by a gratifying success. With William J. Northen there has thus far been written no such word as "fail."

Above all things he is a democrat of the straightest sect and always has been. He claims his democracy as an inheritance from his North Carolina father, and with it he says he got enough rosin to make it stick. If he be mistaken in this, I give assurance that he took from his Georgia mother that consecration to duty, that courage of conviction, that loyalty to principle, which will make him cleave to it in every extremity as the last and only hope of liberty.

In these times of peril; in this crisis as some are secration to duty, that courage of conviction, that loyalty to principle, which will make him cleave to it in every extremity as the last and only hope of liberty.

In these times of peril; in this crisis as some are pleased to call it, when beset by tyranny from without and dissension from within, when liberty is threatened on the one hand and political unity on the other, how fortunate that here in Georgia, "wisdom, justice and moderation" shall rule the hour; here, with open convictions and free discussion, "error," if it exist, can never prove "dangereus while the truth is left free to combat it." Here, in the forefront of the column, marches our invincible leader, holding aloft the flag of democracy, whose principles with him are eternally paramount to every other purpose, or aim, or aspiration. Under such leadership no peril can threaten, no danger can affright us.

What if the Farmers' Alliance march with him at the head of the column? God bless the farmers. Let them march on, if need be, all through Georgia—not like Sherman with ruin and desolation, but with ipdependence, prosperity and contentment to all in all tur people. The farmers have built our homes, our churches, our; schoolhouses and our colleges. From their ranks have come our honored leaders in church and state. They have given to the geniuses of our people whatever was noblest in their impulses, and to them virtue and intelligence was their highest aim. Today in this presence let me pay tribute to these noble toilers, for "they give dignity to labor, and the sweat drop standing on their brouzed but honest brows at they strike for the well-being of wife and children, is a worthier jewel than ever glittered in the crown of a king."

Here today, in this august presence, I would if I could, proclaim and solemnize under just such leadership eternal marriage between the Farmers' Alliance to crown labor with wealth and independence; the democracy to preserve and perpetion; the democracy to fight our political batties; the alliance to crown labor wi tate liberty. Marching out as a mighty giant, armed with sword and shield, I would have them make war on trusts, and combines, and monopolies; upon force bills and tyrants and tyrannies, until the last enemy of both, prostrate and bleading before this indignant Titan, shall be smitten, hip and high, with irretrievable defeat.

Mr. President, in seconding as I do, the nomination, I move a suspension of the rule which requires a ballot, and that the nomination of Hon. William J. Torthen, for the office of governor of Georgia, be made by acclamation.

The motion was put and carried unani-mously amid loud shouts and cheers on all sides.

NOMINATING THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

When the chairman announced that nominations for attorney general were in order, an interest silenced the crowded hall like solemn spell, and as Hon. A. S. Clay arose with recognition from the chairman to speak all eyes were npon him.

He said:

Mr. Chairman: Hon. Clifford Anderson is essful politician. But, sir, I want to name another for the office of attorney general of Georgia who deserved something from the democratic party. That name was Georga N.

democratic party. That hands was decogn No.

Lester.

"Here is a man who stands the personification of pure and undefiled democracy, honor and truth. A loyal citizen, a true democrat, a confederate hero [applause] and an able statesman. These are his virtues, which make good his claims for this office today.

"When Georgo N. Lester went forth to battle for the south's honor, he went with the bravery of a hero and the loyalty of a martyr.
He was among the first in those trying days to take his musket from the rack and go forth to fight his country's battles for honor's sake.
[Applause.]

[Applause.]
"He went where the fire was thickest, and when his right arm was shot from his body, he fought with the other until, staggering from the less of his heart's best blood, whitened almost by the hand of death itself, he fell like a martyr, believing his life was abbing to its close.

ebbing to its close.

"But, Mr. Chairman, he did not die. Too noble a life for this land to lose, and spared by the providence of an allwise Creator. he stands today to ask for recognition at the hands of the democratic party.

for recognition at the hands of the democratic party.

"Is he a democrat? Why, every song he ever sung was a democratic song. The first speech he ever made was a democratic speech. If you want a magnificent attorney general, nominate the old one armed soldier of the county of Cobb." [Tremendous applause.]

HON.CLIFFORD ANDERSON.

Mr. Henry Richardson, of Bibb, put in nomination Hon. Clifford, Anderson, who now bolks and has held the office of attorney general.

Mr. Richardson said: "I rise to put before the convention a man that, I am proud to say, has held this office of attorney general for ten years. Can it be, great heaven, that the day has come when faithful service disqualifies a man for office? "Has aught ever been uttered against Hon. Clifford Anderson since he became attorney general? Is there one charge to be brought general? Is there one charge to be brought against his whole career as a citizen, a democrat or an officer?

"When the roll book was opened on the bloody field of battle, and his name was called there, he was ever ready to answer, as he has done since the matters of public trust, 'I am When the war was over, none quicker than

"When the war was over, none quicker than himself went back to take up the great work of building up this sunny south."

Mr. Richardson's speech was well received and brought forth much applause.

Mr. Price Gibert, of Muscogee, seconded the nomination of Hon. Clifford Anderson, and Colonel John P. Shannon, of Elbert, seconded that of Mr. George M. Lester. THE VOTE FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Of course, it was generally understood before the balloting began that Lester would be nominated, but there is nothing absolutely certain in such things and Judge Anderson's friends were hopeful to the last. Judge Lester's friends, on the other hand, were confident; but-the vote hadn't been counted, not offic-

"The county of Appling!" shouted Secretary Bill Harris, of Worth. "Two for Lester," came promptly from the chairman of that delegation.
"Lester two," said Colonel Mark Hardin, who was tally-sheet clerk.
"The county of Baker!"
"Two votes for Anderson!"
"Anderson two!"

Anderson two!

"Anderson two!"

And so on, neck and neck for awhile, and then Judge Lester began creeping ahead steadily. The gap widened, contracting spasmodically now and then, but widened again more than before.

It was not known just how many votes would be cast, nor, therefore, how many were necessary to a nomination, but if every county was represented there would be only 350 votes was represented there would be only 350 votes in the convention, and 176 would nominate.

That much was certain, and as Judge Lester crept nearer and nearer the safety line, the enthusiasm was manifested in bursts of applause.

Union county's two for Lester made 175.

county was called

"Two for Lester," was the response.
"Hats were thrown into the air, handkerchiefs were waved, and even the ladies in the gallery were constrained to applaud with enthusiasm. The cheering was prolonged

The victory was won.
"Make it unanimous!"
"What's the use calling the others?"
"Hurrah for Lester!"

It was three or four minutes before order could be restored, and then the roll call was continued. The totals footed up:

Anderson 140.

Making the totals: Nesbitt, 1421. Henderson, 140.

Henderson, 140.
Hunnicutt, 53\(^2\).
No one candidate had received a majority of all the votes cast.
The first several counties showed no change until Bibb cast her six votes solid for Henderson, taking two from Nesbitt.
This was cheered by the Henderson men.
Then Brooks changed from Nesbitt to Henderson, and a great big cheer went up from Judge Henderson's friends. But then things settled down again.

Judge Henderson's friends. But then things settled down again.

Finally Glasoock changed from Henderson to Nesbitt, and the fun was on the other side. Then Jones took one and a half votes from Hunnicutt to give to Henderson.

There was a deafening cheer from the Nesbitt men when Newton voted. Pike took Henderson's vote and gave it to Nesbitt, making Nesbitt 2, and Hunnicutt 2. Terrell gave Nesbitt's one vote to Hunnicutt.

Washington changed from Hunnicutt to Henderson.

That made the count:
Henderson, 146\frac{1}{2}.
Nesbitt, 141\frac{1}{2}.
Hunnicutt, 501-6.

The third ballot showed no very alarming change, the chances coquetting back in Nes-pitt's favor, but keeping at a safe distance from the nomination.

To begin with, Appling changed her Hunnicutt votes to Nesbitt. The Nesbitt people thought this was the beginning of a landslide—

a bust-up of the Hunnicutt vote—but they missed it missed it.

The roll call grew monotonous.
Chattooga changed her Nesbitt votes to Hunnicutt, offsetting Appling.
Crawford from Henderson to Nesbitt.

Decatur took one vote from Nesbitt and gave Gilmer from Henderson to Nesbitt. Henry from Hunnicutt to Nesbitt. Jones, which started out Hunnicutt, then Hunnicutt and Henderson, now voted solid or Henderson. Lowndes, Nesbitt to Henderson.

Lumpkin took one vote from Nesbitt and gave it to Hunnicutt. Terrell went back to Nesbitt. Towns from Henderson to Nesbitt.

Washington went back to Hunnicutt, taking our votes from Henderson's last count. That left Nesbitt again in the lead. Nesbitt, 1523. Henderson, 1373.

Hunnicutt, 443.
Then came the deciding ballot.
It started,off quietly. The first change was in Bibb, which, after the first ballot, had been solid for Henderson. Two votes went back to Then Brooks went from Henderson back to Burke-that started the panic! Its six votes flopped solidly from Henderson to Nesbitt, The applause was tremendous.

Fannin, from Henderson to Nesbitt. Floyd-with her six votes-went from Henderson to Nesbitt.

The Nesbitt men began throwing up their hats and waving umberlas and handkerchiefs, for the victory was almost won.

Fulton gave three of her six to Nesbitt, taking them from Henderson.

Hancock took two votes from Henderson and added to Nesbitt's one.

Hart left Henderson and went to Hunnicutt.

Liberty county sent in her proxy by telegraph in time to have her vote cast for Nesbitt.

Lincoln gave one of her votes to Neshitt. Lumpkin went back solid for Neshitt. McDuffie from Hunnicatt to Neshitt. Meriwether gave two of her Hunnicutt votes

Richmond county took three votes from Henderson and gave them to Nesbitt.
Sumter gave Nesbitt one.
Talbot went to Nesbitt.
Thomas swapped Henderson for Nesbitt.
Warren left Hunnicutt for Nesbitt.
Wilkes did the same thing.
Nesbitt was nominated, and a few policy changes were made. Fulton changed her vote, giving it solid to Nesbitt. There were two or three others like this, and the vote was announced:

Nesbitt, 204.
Henderson, 106.
Hunnicutt, 22.
Nesbitt was declared the nominee for comner of agriculture.

NOMINATING OTHER OFFICERS.

Hon. W. A. Little, in a brief speech, nominated General Phillip Cook for secretary of tate Mr. Washington Dessau, seconded the nom-ination and moved that he be nominated by ination and moved that he be nominated by acclamation.

The vote was unanimous, and General Cook was declared nominated.

Mr. W. A. Harris, of Worth, nominated Hon. Robert U. Hardeman for treasurer, and Mr. Reville, of Meriwether, seconded the nomination, saying there was not a better man for the place than "big-headed and big-heatted Bob Hardeman."

The vote was put and carried unanimously. Mr. W. A. Harris, of Worth county, nominated Hon. W. A. Wright for the office of comptroller general, and the nomination was quickly seconded and carried unanimously.

COLONEL NORTHEN'S SPRECU.

COLONEL NORTHEN'S SPRECH Colonel Northen was greeted with enthusiastic applause as he entered the hall, which was prolonged as he walked down the aisle and stepped upon the platform.

Mr. President," said he, "and Gentlemen of the the Convention: Your action in tendering me the nomination of the democratic party for the office of governor of the state commands my fullest appreciation.

To be chosen standard bearer by the democracy of the empire state of the south is a distinction of which the most eminent citizen of the state might well be proud. In accepting this honorable place, I shall confidently trust to your generous support and your active aid in the interest of the

The unanimity of your action is not only a matter of personal gratification to me, but it says in unmistakable terms to all the people of all the states that the democratic party of deorgia, holding to its principles as the basis of good government, is, absolutely, without discord and division in its ranks. (Continued applause.)

Without distinction as to class, or business, or pursuit; loyal to each other, loyal to the party, loyal to the state and loyal to the government, standing together upon the threshold of an eventful future, full of splendid possibilities and yet threatened with danger, we can linger but a moment while the dead past quiety buries its dead and them gather our forces to make the destiny that awaits us beyond. The misfortunes and the memories of the past are now all garnered to God, and our tears, crystaled in the light of divine sympathies, will be kept until the resurrection of righteousness and justice and truth. [Applause.]

truth. (Applause.)
Our duty now takes hold upon the living present. Above all things else political, involving, if need be, the sacrifice of personal ends and personal views, the security of the government and the stability of the state must be founded on the absolute unity of the national democratic party. (Applause.)

need be, the sacrince or personal engaginal personal views, the security of the government and the stability of the state must be founded on the absolute unity of the national democratic party. [Applause.]

The democratic party, if ever in power, stands pledged to the proper adjustment of the burdens of government, to the devotion of the masses, to the exercise of any and all rights common to any and all people; to the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and to the proper increase of the currency to meet the necessary demands of legitimate business; to the reduction of the tariff, so as to draw no more money from the people than is absolutely necessary for the administration of the government; the democratic party, claiming for every citizen the free and untrammeled right to the expression of his choice at the ballot box, will exhaust all legitimate resistance to federal interference with our elections; the democratic party, bravely standing upon the broad principles of American freedomequal rights to all men and special privileges to none—will demand for every citizen individual liberty, for every section local self-government and the rights of the state, and for all people an honest, fair, judicious and economical administration of public affairs. [Applause.]

If these great principles of democracy are finally triumphant, I repeat, the party, state and national, must be united as one man. Georgia, south Carolina, Texas and the great south, locking shields with Ohio, Iowa and the new-born conservatism of the west, can strike down any unwarranted usurpation that threatens the security of the government and the liberties of the people. [Great applause.]

The American government, in its original concention, presents the highest idea of human liberty and the sovereignty of the people. In its progress and growth, temptations to party permanence and party power have induced a usurpation of right and an exercise of authority that are dangerous to our institutions.

Forgetful of individual right and not regardful of

They have seen the corrupt grant of subsidies transfer millions of their money to private citizens in open violation of the spirit and genius of our government.

Mr. Cleveland has said; "Our people will never revolt against the plan of our government, for its protection and its preservation will supply an inspiration of true Americanism. But because they are true and iadependent American citizens as long as their love and veneration for their government shall last, they will revolt against the domination of any political party entrusted with power that sordidly seeks only its own continuance, which, faithlessly violating its plain and simple duty to the people, insults them with professions of disinterested solicitude while it eats away their substance and their life." [Applause.]

We arraign the party in power today for corrupting and debauching the American franchise; for its revolutionary methods to perpetuate its power; for its usurpation in ejecting from office the duly elected representatives of the people; for its denial of statchood to territorles entitled to it because of their democratic majority, and its corrupt recognition of others because of their republican power; for its contraction of the currency and the oppressive system of national bank; for its continued aggressions upon the rights of the people to build up the fortunes of the few; for its contained aggressions upon the rights of the people to build up the fortunes of the few; for its contained aggressions upon the rights of the people to build up the fortunes of the few; for its contained aggressions upon the right of the people to build up the fortunes of the few; for its contained aggressions upon the right of the people to build up the fortunes of the few; for the continued aggressions upon the right of the people to build up the fortunes of the few; for the content political agitation to provoke sectional strife and local war. For the destruction of all these and kindred iniquities in the government, the democratic party will exhaust a and the general prosperity of the state. [Oreal applause.]

We have no time, nor place, nor occasion for division of sentiment or division of interest among the people of Georgia. Let every man, forgetting himself, remember the state; every man build up himself by building up the state; every man honor himself by honoring the state, until every field shall be fertile with fatness, every man an intelligent citizen, every home a place of content, every community a picture of thrift, and the state, the whole state, presenting the perfection of government, and an ideal, prosperous and happy people. [Continued applause.]

The Committee's Platform.

The chairman of the committee on res tions made the following report as the plat-form for the state democracy.

The democratic party of Georgia, in companion tions made the following report as the platform for the state democracy. The democratic party of Georgia, in convention assembled, hereby renews its pledges to the political principles set forth in the national democratic platform of 1888.

We favor correcting all the abuses of government by a strict reliance upon the integrity and ability of the democratic party.

We point with pride to the fidelity and capacity with which the affairs of state have been managed by our distinguished governor, John B. Gordon, and the other statehouse officers. We will heartily support the nominees of this convention, and we call upon all democrats to support party nominations in the various districts and counties of this state.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The following executive committee was appointed by the chairman: First District-Bolling Whitfield, of Glenn, and E. D. Graham.

Second District—J. L. Hand, of Mitchell, and William Harrison, of Quitman. Villiam Harrison, of Quitman. Third District—R. F. Watts, of Steward, and R. H. Brown, of Pulaski.

Fourth District—J. C. Williams, of Harris.

Fifth District—Frank P. Rice and C. M.

Fifth District—Frank P. Rice and C. M. Candler.
Sixth District—Washington Dessan, of Bibb, and L. D. Shannon, of Twiggs.
Seventh District—M. A. B. Tatom, of Dade, and J. M. McBride, of Haraison.
Eighth District—W. H. Mattox, of Elbert, and J. M. Smith, of Oglethorpe.
Ninth District—Lewis Davis, of Habersham, and E. W. Watkins, of Gilmer.
Tenth District—James Whitehead, of Warren, and C. H. Cohen, of Augusta.
The members from the state at large have not yet been appointed.
The convention adjourned at 6 o'clock.

The governor's reception at the mansion last night, was attended by very many dele-gates and visitors to the convention, who re-gates and visitors to the convention, who remained over for that purpose.

At 8:30 o'clock the guests began to arrive, and soon the parlors of the mansion were filled with distinguished Georgians who had called to pay their respects to Governor Gordon. For two hours they came, and during those hours the scenes were interesting.

The affair was a most delightful one in desire to say that there was no intention y ever to misrepresent Mr. Hoke Smith. The reporter, to whom the task of covering that meeting was assigned, gathered from members of the delegation the basis for his report. If Mr. Smith's language was not correctly reported, it was due to misinformation. That the objections to Mr. Womack mentioned there were made, was common talk about the hotel lobbies after that meeting, and the fact that the same objections were urged against Mr. Womack during the day seemed to argue the truth of the report as it came to me.

ELECTRIC FRANKENSTEIN. A Mechanism Both Ingenious and Useful-

Moves a Perambulator. Lowell, Mass., August 7.—George R. Moore, of this city, a retired mill owner, has constructed an electric man that walks about with every appearance of life, and is made to be useful as well as ornamental by pushing a perambulator. The chair over which he presides is a light wicker-work affair, like those of a half-grown trotting sulky. There is a sides is a light wicker-work affair, like those of a half-grown trotting sulky. There is a footboard which is used for carrying the batteries which put the propelling power into the electric man's muscles of wood and steel.

The man stands directly behind the chair. If he were flesh and blood he would just come inside the limits as a light-weight sparrer, and as far as all appearances go would be about twenty-five years old. He is connected with the chair at about the point at which the human diaphragm is popularly supposed to be located. ocated There is a pushing bar above this, on which

There is a pushing bar above this, on which his neatly gloved hands rest, but this is more for vanity than utility. He is dressed in the heighth of fashion, being attired in a new suit of gray mixed goods, white shirt with collar and cuffs to match, and a soft felt hat. He has a number of changes of clothing and can be dressed for the fourth of July or Christmas weather just like any man. He wears a No. 6 shoe, four wide, and sports a Louis Napolcon moustache. Met upon any thoroughfare he would be marked for his general style and dignified bearing. Just at present his complexion is a little off color; but he is to have this treated with the most approved toilet preparations with the most approved toilet preparations that the paint pot can produce.

The action of the feet and legs, which the inventor has reached with this machine, is a remarkable imitation of a human being. There is none of the jerky motion that is so commonly seen in mechanical figures. Each foot, as it leaves the ground, rises naturally on the toe with the same springy motion that is characteristic of the graceful walk among men and women. As in the taking of the foot from the ground so in replacing it at the end of the step, the motion is free from jog or jar, and is entirely natural.

YOUNG TIBBS IN JAIL.

An Atlanta Youth Who Seems to Have Gotten Into Serious Trouble.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., August 7.-[Special.]-A week ago Walter H. Tibbs, a young man from Atlanta, son of a comm merchant in that city, was arrested here for a small forgery. He had no money to pay a fine and went to the city chaingang. Today Edward Urwick, traveling agent for D. Appleton, of New York, arrived here, and identified Tibbs as the man who robbed him of $300 in Atlanta two months ago. Urwick and Tibbs occupied the same room at a boarding house in Atlanta. One morning Tibbs was missing with $300 of his room mate's money. He will be taken back to Allanta for trial.

THE WHITE CAPS SPOTTED And the Marshal Is Likely to Bring Then to Grief. SPARTANBURG, S. C., August 7.—[Special.]

The White Caps have come to grief. Chief come to grief. Chief white Hill, has had his eye on them for some Police Hill, has had his eye on them for some time, and this morning brought seven of the offenders before the mayor. They proved to be a party of half-grown boys, who had banded themselves together as regulators. Their names are as follows: Dexter Jenkins, Josh Mullinax, Jack Peace, Charles Boyd, Robert Porter, Arthur Miester and Charles Deerman. The case against them was clearly made out. They had beaten Susie Wilson and Dora Floyd, two negroes who were living in open adultery. They had beaten Susie Wilson and Dora Floyd, two negroes who were living in open adultery. The women said the boys came to their houses masked, and beat them most terribly, their conduct and look was that of White Caps. After hearing the evidence the mayor fined each of the young men $2, and gave them a talk, in which he said that he had made their punishment as light as possible, because it was their first offense; but should any more trouble occur, they would be given the utmost punishment possible, and turned over to the courts to be dealt with.

THE MISSISSIPPI ALLIANCE Passes Resolutions Denouncing the Force

STARREVILLE, Miss., August 7.—[Special.]—
The Mississippi state alliance has been in session here since Tuesday, and is composed of the most representative farmers ever assembled in Mississippi. CLEVER WRENS.

A Pair of them Eucher Two Bluebirds Out of a Nesting Place.

On Farmer Harvey M. Van Sickle's place, in Silver Lake township, Pa., a two story stone milk house has been standing for more than fifty years. When the masons built it they knocked the

When the masons built it they knocked the mouth from an old earthen jug and cemented the jug into the solid wall toward the peak, leaving the open end on the outside of the wall. The kindh earted workmen put the jug there for a purpose, and every summer since then wrens have nested in it.

This season a pair of bluebirds got there a few hours before the wrens did, took possession of the jug without any ceremony, and began to carry bits of straw and dried grass into it at intervals of fifteen or twenty minutes. Toward noon a pair of wrens flitted into the yard and sailed around the milk house two or three times. Then they made a dive for the opening in the jug, darted into it, and soon flew out, squalling spitefully. The reason why they did this was because they had found one of the bluebirds fixing things up inside.

The surprised bluebird sailed out in the wrens' wake, and then a feathered warfare was begun that lasted for two hours. Finding a stranger in a home that had been occupied by wrens for half a century, made the little wrens mad all over. They pitched into the bluebird and tried to drive it away, giving vent to angry pipes and squalls as they fought. For a time the bluebird gave battle to the little birds, but the two were more than a match for it, and it retired to a tree. While it was perched there.

combatants had it back and forth among the trees for half an hour, neither party entering the jug while the battle lasted.

Finally they stopped fighting, and each side began to carry things into the jug. The wrens made two trips while the bluebirds were making one, and late in the afternoon the wrens had filled the hole so full of twigs that the bluebirds couldn't get in. There was room for the wrens to go in and out and they held the bluebirds couldn't get in. There was room for the wrens to go in and out, and they held the fort against their bigger foes, who made several attempts to tear the barrier of twigs away, but without success. THE TESTIMONY BEGINS. Dr. George R. Dean testified that he was called in to examine the dead man, Finger. He opened the abdomen, and found a bullet hole in the left side. The ball ranged backward through the body, severing the spinal cord in its passage. The ball was not found. No other wound was discovered on the dead man.

Lawson Howelf was present when Edward Finger was killed. Edward Finger and a woman named Lu Sparks had had a quarrel. She ran down the road to a store owned by Turner, where she stopped. The witness followed. When he arrived on the scene Turner was in the act of firing at Finger. Another shot was fired but witness does not know by whom. Finger ran down the road about fifty yards and fell on a bridge over a small neighboring river. The date was March 7th, 1890 The witness removed the wounded man in his wagon, and while doing so he died.

The witness was cross-examined by Major D. R. Duncan. He said that he had come to Spartanburg that morning with the deceased and several others. They had all been drinking. Witness said that he was one of the mer who had come down here to lynch Turner. This statement created a sensation in the court room, even the passive prisoner bent for ward in his seat and scowled on the witness.

A BROTHER OF THE MURDERED MAN. The next witness was Joseph Finger, brother of the murdered man. His testimony in substance corroborated that of Lawson Howell, who had preceded him. His brother had a pistol in his right overcoat pocket when Turner walked out to the road with his pistol in his hand, and told the negro who was holding him to let Finger go, that "he would fix him." Edward Finger put his hand in his pocket, presumably for his pistol, but it went off before he could draw it. Turner then fired. Finger fired in reply, and then Turner, and ran towards the bridge, where he fell.

The examination of the witness occupied two hours and a half.

On the re-examination by Major D. R. Duncan for the defense, the most dramatic incident of the day occurred. It had been stated that there was ill feeling be tween Turner and Finger. The solicitor then asked witness: "Why were your brother and Turner at Finger at the beginning of the difficulty was next sworn. His testimony exactly coincided with that of the three who had preceded him. The witness that now followed created intense excitement over the whole courrthouse. It was Clara Finger, the girl whom Turner had seduced, and about whom the murder was committed. She was dressed in •deep black, with a veil over her face. She was sworn and seated on the stand. When her veil was thrown back it revealed a face of great delicacy and extreme beauty. She was very pale, but when speaking a faint flush rose to her cheek. The examination was begun by the

"The first time was last December, in a conversation which I then had with him concerning my condition. He said, 'Clara, when your brother finds out what I have done to you I expect I shall have to kill him,' and at the words, "I have done to you," her voice falcent young girl Turner cast unhallowed tered, and finally failed entirely. She be came deathly white, and "She is fainting!" was called by several. Water was taken to her and after a few moments she gained her composure. The color came back to her face gradually, and on a repetition of the question he gave the answer quoted above. The whole of Miss Finger's testimony was damaging to the prisoner. She gained the sympathy of every man in the audience, and an attempt was made to applaud her, as she left the court room, but was quickly suppressed by the baisister had been foully betrayed, their rage

Two or three unimportant witnesses followed and the first day of the South Carolina sensational trial was ended.

A Valuable Property. LAGRANGE, Ga., August 7.—[Special.]—A trade was recently consummated in LaGrange, by which the Gholson property, near the depot, passed into the hands of Messrs. O. A. Dunson and J. M. Barnard, who are now its joint owners. It has a railroad frontage of 600 feet, with 300 feet on Main and ninety feet on Depot street. There are two beautiful building lots flanking the old Goshen residence (which is a part of the property) on Main street, with is a part of the property) on Main street, with at least 100 feet front each. By extending the street that runs parallel with the railroad until it joins Main, there will be as long a front on the one side as on the other. Here are beautiful sites for all kinds of manufacturing extablishments. The situation could not be beautiful sites for all kinds of manufacturing establishments. The situation could not be improved. It is a splendid site for a guano factory or a cotton compress. It is estimated that in two years this property will be worth double what it is today. Should our city develop into a wholesale center, this ground will be in special demand for that trade.

The South Carolina Convention

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 7.—[Special.]—
Now that the smoke of the first round of the internecine fight between the democrats of the state has cleared off, both sides are bracing up for the supreme fight, which takes place on Thursday next, when the state convention meets. The real fight will take place after the adjournment of the convention, in which the Tillmanites have upward of 250 out of 320 delegates. The convention is called simply to decide whether there shall be a state primary to elect delegates to the convention in September, which is to nominate state officers.

THE DAY IN CONGRESS.

THE SENATE STILL ON THAT "UN-

An Appeal from the Agriculturists for a Reduction of Duty on Cotton Ties-Pro-ceedings of the House. WASHINGTON, August 7.—The senate met day at 10 o'clock a. m. The roll call showed only thirty-two senators, eleven less than a quorum in attendance. After a short waiting, while the sergeant-at-arms was supposed to be inviting the attendance of absent senators, a quorum was obtained, and the journal of yesterday's proceedings was read by the secretary.

After some preliminary morning business, the tariff bill was taken up, the pending question being on Mr. Vance's amendment to reduce the duty on pig iron (paragraph 128 reduce the duty on pig iron (paragraph 128, page 25) from three-tenths of a cent per pound to $5 per ton.

Mr. Edmunds presented a letter received by him from Mr. Weaver, acting commissioner of labor, giving the figures of the cost of direct labor in the several processes of converting natural elements into pig iron, steel ingots and steel rails, the total being $11.59 for a ton of steel rails out of a total cost of $25.77, or at the rate of 45 per cent for direct labor from beginning to end.

Mr. Reagan remarked that the estimate was only one-half of Mr. Hewitt's estimate, which was 90 per cent.

Mr. Edmunds explained that Mr. Hewitt's statement included all labor cost, while that now presented only applied to the direct labor A vote on the question was taken, and Mr.

Vance's amendment was rejected—yeas, 17; nays, 27. There were no deviations from party lines on this vote. The next paragraph (129) taxes bar iron, round iron, flats and square iron from eight-tenths of a cent to one cent per pound, according to classification. Here again Mr. McPherson failed to secure a reduction of rates by a strict party review.

son failed to secure a reduction of rates by a strict party vote.

No change was made in paragraph 130; round iron in rods or coits.

Mr. Vance moved to reduce the rate in paragraph 131 (beams, girders and other structural shapes of iron or steel) from nine-tenths to sixtenths of one cent per pound.

Mr. Paddock appealed to Mr. Aldrich, in the interest of agriculture, to agree to a reduction of at least one-tenth of a cent per pound on structural iron.

Mr. Aldrich hearkened to the appeal, and on his motion, the rate was reduced to eight-

THE DUTY ON COTTON TIES.

Mr. Coke moved to make the duty on cotton ties 35 per cent ad valorem, the present rate, and addressed the senate in support of that amendment. He said that the rate contained in the bill was equal to 103 per cent ad valorem, and there was no proper public policy in adding to the burdens of cotton growers. The whole labor cost in the producgrowers. The whole labor cost in the produc-tion of cotton ties was only 20 per cent—so that the present rate gave a bonus of 15 per cent to the manufacturer.

Mr. Vest alluded to the fact that, in regard

Mr. Vest alluded to the fact that, in regard to the three products in which the negroes of the country had most interest—sugar, rice and cotton—they were legislated against in the bill; but that, he said, was easily accounted for. Negroes contributed nothing but their votes to the republican party. The cotton tie manufacturers of Pittsburg had not asked for any increase of duty, and yet the bill increased it 200 per cent. That was one of the most sectional and iniquitous wrongs in the whole measure.

THE SUNDRY CIVIL BILL.

Discussion was continued by Messrs. Berry, Reagan and Jones, of Arkansas. The latter yielded to Mr. Allison, who presented the conference report on the sundry civil appropria tion bill, and asked that the senate should act upon it. The bill, he said, as it passed the house, had carried $28,000,000 and had been increased by the senate about $5,000,000. The net reductions agreed to in the conference amounted to $3,705,000, so that the bill carried wide the second respectively. amounted to $3,705,000, so that the bill carried under the conference report was $29,852,000. Among the changes made in the conference, which he mentioned, were the striking out of $333,500 for new treasury vaults; also the appropriations for several lighthouses, among them Chincoteague, Va., Portsmouth, Va., and Cape Hatteras, N. C. The provisions in relation to irrigation surveys had been post-poned for a further conference. He could not tell what would be done in the matter.

The conference report was ordered printed and went over till tomorrow, without action.

Mr. Hoar, from the committee on privileges Mr. Hoar, from the committee on privileges and elections, reported a substitute for the house election bill, and it was placed on the calendar. The minority of the committee, he said, dissented from the report.

Mr. Frye, referring to the notice heretofore given, that he would ask the senate tomorrow to take up the river and harbor bill, now given, that he would ask the senate tomorrow to take up the river and harbor bill, now gave notice that he would not do so tomorrow, but that he would on Friday of next week.

Mr. Mitchell suggested that Mr. Frye should now ask the unanimous consent to fix Friday, of next week, for the river and harbor bill.

MR. BLAIR AS CLOWN. While discussion upon this point was going on, Mr. Blair rose and said, to the amusement of the senate: "Mr. President, I move the previous ques-

Mr. Dawes presented and explained the conference report on the fortification bill. He said that the bill, as it came from the house, had appropriated $4,521,678 and that the senate had increased that amount $3,074,257, making the total as it passed the senate $7.595,935. The conference committee had reduced the amount $3,363,000 on its face, but had changed, in no respect, the features of the bill as it passed the senate.

A long discussion ensued between Messrs. Dawes, Edmunds, Dolph and Plumb, and the conference report went over without action.

After a brief executive session, the senate, at 6 o'clock p. m., adjourned.

EXTRA SUGAR FOR THE BOYS. An Extra Month's Pay for Congressional

The house then went into a committee of the whole, Mr. Payson in the chair, on-the general deficiency bill.

Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, moved to strike out the clause appropriating $6,600 to pay George A. Matthews, in full, for the unexpired term of the fifty-first congress, for which he was elected as a delegate from the territory of Dakota. Lost after debate—63 to 64. Mr. Clunie, of California, offered an amend-

Mr. Clunie, of California, offered an amendment granting an extra month's pay to employes of the senate and house. Mr. Clunie made a vigorous speech in favor of his amendment, asking support for it on the ground that the session had lasted months longer than had been expected. He could not see the end of the session. If the senate undertook to pass the outrageous, iniquitous force bill, congress would be in session when the snow was flying.

Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, and Mr. Oates, of Alabama, led the opposition to the proposition, denouncing it as establishing a victous principle—a principle of tips. The amendment was adopted—71 to 43.

The bill having been disposed of, the committee rose, all amendments were agreed to, save that granting an extra month's salary to the senate and house employes, and then the bill went over until tomorrow.

ASKING FOR A RECESS, In Order That They May Attend the G. A. R.

Convention.

Convention.

Washington, August 7.—About one hundred and twenty-five members of the house have united in a request to the committee on rules to report the resolution providing for a recess of the house from Monday to Friday of next week, in order to permit those desiring to do so, to attend the national encampment G. A. R., at Boston. It is probable that the request will not be granted, for the reason that republican leaders believe that the house should devote next week to the consideration of senate measures on the calendar. It is said that about sixty members of both sides of the house will go to Boston anyway.

At the request of the managers of the tariff bill, republican members of the senate committee on commerce have agreed that consideration of the river and harbor bill, which was to have displaced the tariff bill tomorrow, will be postponed until a future date, probably Friday of next week. The reason for this change of programme is believed that it will tend to hasten the progress of debate on the tariff bill, the republicans arguing that the democrats desire action on the river and harbor bill earnestly enough to hurry the tariff bill out of the way to reach it.

THE ELEVENTH GEORGIA Addressed by Ex-Governor McDaniel and

General Longstreet. GAINESVILLE, Ga., August 7 .- [Special.] The Eleventh Georgia regiment held their annual reunion here today, and a basket dinner was spread at Findley's spring. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting, and was enjoyed by the old veterans to the fullest extent.

The meeting was presided over by that grand old man, General Longstreet, and ex-Governor McDaniel made a magnificent address, which was cheered to the echo. He nenced in a calm, deliberate way, but as the memories of the past arose before his vision he warmed up. His eyes sparkled, and his tongue was loosed. It was a grand tribute nobly paid. He eulogized Longstreet for his valor, and said that during four years of war he never saw him the least nervous or excited, even in the thickest of the fight; that when honest, hard and desperate fighting was necessary, General Lee always called upon Longstreet and put him at the very fore front of the battle.

The speech was worthy of the man, the theme and the occasion, full of patriotism and sound reason, and the power of his eloquence claimed the attention of all.

At the conclusion of his speech, loud calls were made for Longstreet, who, in a few well-chosen words, thanked the audience for the compliment paid him. His manly heart was touched, and he was too full for utterances.

A PREACHER UNDER BLACKMAIL He Tenders His Resignation as Editor of a Church Paper.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 7.—[Special.]—In the Cumberland Presbyterian, Rev. D. M. Harris, D. D., editor of that paper, publishes a letter to the board of puclication, in which he again tenders his resignation as editor, and insists upon its immediate acceptance. Dr. Harris says he is influenced solely by the conviction that the best interest of the church demands that he sacrifice his personal interests. Distorted, exaggerated and false statements, become Distorted, exaggerated and false statements, he fears, have gone everywhere, and it would take many months to satisfy all that these reports are untrue. He feels that he is the victim of circumstances that nothing but time and rectitude can set aside.

The board has not yet acted upon the resignation. Dr. Harris tendered his resignation some days ago, but it was not accepted, and is now offered again.

Sometime since Dr. Harris was arrested on a charge of assault and battery upon a notorious woman named Grace Benjamin, at her home. He waved examination before the magistrate, and was bound over to the next term of criminal court. He has an excellent reputation, and no one who knows him has reputation, and no one who knows him has the least doubt that he will be acquitted when the case comes up. Dr. Harris charges that the prosecution is attempted blackmail.

THE VETERANS IN LINE. North Carolina Heroes Gather in Char-

CHARLOTTE, N. C., August 7.—[Special.]— The confederate veterans of Mecklenburg county held their annual picnic in this city today, and it was the most largely attended of any picnic since the camp was organized. The veterans assembled in the First Presbyterian church yard, at 12 o'clock, and were formed into line by Lieutenant Commander Harrison Watts. His double line extended along the entire frontage of these blocks. Concert Respired. along the e of three blocks. General R. Barringer addressed "the old vets" in a feeling manner that brought tears to the eyes of many. The general, in referring to the benevolent and historic features of the organization, appealed to those whose lines had fallen in better places to those whose lines had fallen in better places since the war to make a liberal response towards aiding their unfortunate and dependent comrades. The general then handed Treasurer William Taylor his check for $65 and hoped that this might be the means of furthering the cause that, to some extent, has lagged for the past five years.

The Alliance Picnic.

Covington, August 7.—[Special.]—Yesterday was something of a gala day for our town, as there have been many persons from all parts of the county in attendance on the alliance picnic, which occurred in the grove at the male academy. Speeches of welcome were made by Captain J. M. Pace, as mayor of the city, and Captain John B. Davis, as the representative of the suballiance of this place. Mr. J. A. Richards and Colonel L. F. Livingston also spoke in the forenoon. About an hour and a half was devoted to dinner and social chat, and in the afternoon speeches were made by Messrs. John Rocquemore, L. L. Middlebrooks and others. The occasion was in all respects a success, and contributed greatly to the pleasure of the large crowd that was in attendance.

All the Parties Were Colored.

Mt. Vernon, Ga., August 7.—[Special.]—After dark, near Peacock & Peterson's saw mill, on the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railroad, in this county, Pomp Brad-well as principal, and Jim Spring as accessory, murdered Sam Reynolds, Pomp shooting him with a pistol. All the parties are negroes. The murderers were arrested and confined in jail at Mt. Vernon, after a commitment trial.

LAGRANGE, Ga., August 7.—[Special.]—Professor W. R. Thigpen and wife, of Savannah, spent yesterday in the city, the guests of Mr. Euler B. Smith, at the LaGrange Female college. Professor Thigpen is the distinguished president of the Georgia Teachers' Association and one of the leading educators of the state.

Macon, Ga., August 7.—[Special.]—President H. T. Powell, for the Macon public library, has resigned. He has held the office a long while and now that the library has got into its own handsome building, an end for which he has striven hard, he is now desirous of retiring from the office. His term would have expired next December. The board of directors will elect his successor tomorrow night.

Lumpkin, Ga., August 7.—[Special.]—At a mass meeting held here, the following delegates were elected to attend the congressional convention at Hawkinsville, August 14th, and instructed them to vote for C. F. Crisp, W. W. Fitzgerald, R. F. Watts, J. M. Scott, J. T. Harrison, I. T. Holder, K. T. Humber, T. L. Morton, E. P. Pearson, F. B. Gregory.

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 1, 1890.—The juisdiction of Mr. G. A. Whitehead, general reight agent; Mr. E. T. Charlton, general passenger agent; Mr. J. B. Preston, general claim gent, is hereby extended over the Savannah and Atlantic railway, taking effect this date.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 8, 1890.

The State Convention. That which is quickly done is not always well done, but the work of yesterday's convention is an exception to this rule.

The make-up of the convention was remarkable. The delegates were all busy men, representing varied interests. They knew what they came here for, and went at it in a business-like way, thus setting a good precedent for all future bodies to follow.

EThe convention throughout was marked by this business spirit. With an impatience of speeches, the convention proceeded upon the work in hand, and accomplished more in one short afternoon than other conventions had in several days. The utmost harmony prevailed, and the members separated fully determined that the banner of democracy should never trail in the dust.

The entire nominated ticket is an excellent one. Governor Northen will be conservative and safe. The statehouse officers nominated are men who have long held the confidence of the public. Altogether Georgia is promised an era of good government in competent hands for the next two years.

The democracy of the state should rally at once to the ticket and cast such a vote in October that the world will see how determined the people of Georgia are to preserve the supremacy of the white race.

Sam Small in His New Field.

Last Tuesday the corner stone of the Utah University of the Methodist Episcopal church was laid at Ogden with brilliant ceremonies. The buildings will cost upwards of $500,000, and will be on a majestic scale. The support already secured will make this university one of the greatest educational institutions in the country.

It was a great day for Ogden. The governor of Utah delivered an address, and then the Rev. Samuel W. Small, A.M., D.D., president of the university, delivered an oration which in the language of the press dispatches was a vigorous, scholarly and encouraging presentation of the scope, aims and expectations of the university projectors and managers. He spoke with stirring energy concerning the practical problems of the national and local civilizations, and promised that the new university should always move faithfully to its motto: "Pro Christo et Patria."

A feature of the occasion was the num ber of congratulatory telegrams received and read to the vast audience. Ex-President Hayes, General Sherman, Oliver Wendell Holmes. Senator Edmunds and the Rev. Joseph Cook sent President Small cordial and appreciative messages predicting the success of his work. Mr. Gladstone cabled across the Atlantic the following words: "I heartily desire success for your noble purpose of helping to rescue fellow-countrymen from a deplorable delusion."

It is evident that Dr. Small has thoroughly disentangled himself from his old profession and his old life, and in his new field has every inducement and incentive to march onward and upward. He is a young man yet, brainy and energetic, and there is no telling what the future has in store for him

Docking Our Statesmen.

A terrible threat hangs over the members of the house.

It is understood that if certain members notorious for their absenteeism persist in remaining away without leave, their pay will be docked, even though they protect their votes with private pairs.

Docking will be resorted to only as a last remedy. It has not been enforced for years, and no member of the house has any recollection of a precedent.

Of course, there is a good deal to be said In favor of the docking system, but it has Its drawbacks. The victims very rarely endorse it, and when they think that their extra work has made up for their lost time they regard docking as something very like robbery. When men feel this way they proceed to get even, and many of them are willing to get a little more than even with

It is safe to say that it will not make our congressmen more faithful or industrious to dock them. They will resent such treat ment, and lay their plans to draw full pay for very little work.

The average congressman very often has extra work to do, and a great deal of it. He is conscious of it, and when he loses a little time he thinks that it should not be counted against him.

A worker who gradgingly counts his hours, measures his labor and is unfaithful, deserves to be docked, but the one who makes it a point always to give more than he receives, should not come under the operation of such a penalty. The better way would be to retire our congressmen when they are idle and unfaithful. The docking system is not the remedy.

Bad Advice.

Editor Shepard, of the New York Mail and Express, exultantly declares that the negroes in South Carolina are masters of the situation, and he appeals to the ablest and pluckiest of their race in the north to go to the Palmetto State and help their

This is very bad advice. In fact, it is the worst that could possibly be given. The ablest and pluckiest negroes in the north doubtless have sense enough to mind their own business. If they go to South Carolina to monkey with the local problems down there they will almost inevitably drift into trouble, and wind up in the chaingang.

There is no state in the union, north of south, that would stand such outside interference as Editor Shepard proposes. All the trouble and bloodshed in Kansas before the war resulted from just such a policy, and similar methods would today lead to the same disastrous consequences.

Northern agitators of the Shepard variety would plunge the country into internecine strife if they had any considerable following, but happily for all concerned their advice is not heeded. In this particular instance we repeat that the able and plucky negroes in the northern states will find it to their interest to stay where they are and take care of their own affairs.

A Nest of Hornets.

It has been suggested more than once since the Pan-American congress that it is our duty to exercise a sort of protectorate over Central and South America.

Perhaps it would be wise to review the situation before committing our government to such a policy. Our southern neighbors of the Latin race are a very difficult people to handle. Altogether, it is estimated that within the past ninety years they have had 2,000 revolutions, big and little. With such a record there is little in these peppery republics to commend them to our favor. Nicaragua alone in the past sixty-nine years has gone through 400 civil wars and uprisings, and every country south of Mexico has been engaged in the cut-throat business most of the time during the past century. We have not counted Mexico in the list, but she has been afflicted with about 125 revolutions since 1800.

This crimson chapter of history is anything but encouraging. It will be all that we can do to maintain satisfactory trade relations with such a nest of hornets, without entangling ourselves with their political affairs.

The suggestion concerning a protectorate is mere midsummer madness. Occasionally we can make a dash into Central America to look after the interests of our citizens, and we may have to reassert the Monroe doctrine, but it is out of the question to keep these warlike Spanish-Americans straight. Such an undertaking would require a strong navy and a bigger standing army than our people would be willing to support.

We must let these turbulent revolutionists go their own way, setting up governments one day only to pull them down the next. If they take pleasure in butchering each other let them go ahead. The line of conduct for us to follow is to sell them all the goods we can for the ready cash, and at the same time to take good care not to be drawn into their quarrels. Any attempt to retorm them would be worse than useless.

A Queer Explanation.

All the republican organs are quite ready to explain why the south is opposed to the force bill. They say the opposition in this section is based on the fact that the whites are opposed to fair and honest elections, and opposed to the constitution of the United States. There are a thousand variations to this explanation, but they all amount to the same thing. The New York Tribune puts it this way: "The democracy fights the force bill because it has good reasons to believe that any measure that secures fair elections, particularly at the south, will help the republican party."

This is one explanation, but some other explanations are necessary. Why is it that the business republicans at the north are opposed to the bill? Is their opposition based on the fact that they object to fair and honest elections? Why are the southern repubcans opposed to the bill? Because it will place their party in power here? Why is the Quay club of Philadelphia opposed to the force bill? Can it be possible that that organization objects to placing the republicans in power?

Then there is Quay himself. He tells the correspondent of the New York Herald that, in his opinion, the force bill cannot become a law at this session of congress. This means, of course, that republican senators are opposed to it. Does the opposition of these senators proceed from their objection to fair and honest elections? It will be seen that the explanation of the organs needs explaining. It leaves them in a trap from which they cannot escape without leaving some of their hair and hide. We advise the great editors to try it again. Will they kindly tell us why every honest man in the country is opposed to the force

It is not so very long ago that the republican organs of the north were making a great to-do over the attitude of the Farmers' Alliance in the south. They were extracting a good deal of comfort out of the situation in South Carolina, and out of the general movement on the part of the alliance in nominating new men for the various offices. They were predicting, indeed, that the alliance was to be the wedge by which the south was to be divided and disorganized, and they were so busily engaged in conjuring up this spectacle that they had no time to pay any attention to the movement of the alliance in the west and northwest.

The great trouble with the average partian editor of the north and east is the fact that he is densely ignorant of the drift and trend of public sentiment outside of those who are as partisan and sectional as he is. and he seems to regard his, ignorance as in the nature of an accomplishment-a phase of special culture-to be paraded in public and be proud of. Facts and object lessons are of no importance whatever to the partisans and sectionalists who edit the republican organs. They seem to be utterly unable to appreciate the vitality of the solid south; they seem to be utterly unable to understand that the unity of the white people here, in the alliance and out of it, with the alliance and in spite of it-is above all merely political issues, and that the people in order to preserve it, and thus preserve themselves from negro domination under republican manipulation, will make any sacrifice and any compromise. This is true of all classes; but the partisan editors of the north ignore this fact, and pretend to believe that the south can be divided, to the profit of the republicans, by the ordinary political methods But their ignorance does not end here. While the republican majority in congress, assisted by the organs, have been hammering away at a tariff bill framed solely in the interests of the monopolists and the manu-facturers, and intended as a bait facturers, and for contributions to the ruption fund, the northern and east gan editors have wholly ignored the tre-mendous change that has been going on among the republicans of the west and northwest on the tariff question. The papers of these sections are full of the subject. The alliances of the different states have taken the matter up, and, in co-operation with the labor organizations, have made strenuous protests against a high tariff.

But it is chiefly by means of the alliance that the reformation of puplic opinion has been carried on. In Kansas, Wisconsin, Illinois and Nebraska, the movement in opposition to the pet doctrine of the republican party has created a profound impression among the politicians, but the drift and tendency of the masses of the people have been entirely ignored by the northern and eastern organs, and the New York Tribune, to go no further, is still nagging and abusing sen ators because they refuse to give merely a hasty consideration to the McKinley bill.

Though the organs may ignore such a movement, it has been perceived from afar by Mr. Blaine, who has a happy knack of interpreting public oponion, and we have no doubt that this is the real secret of his recent severe criticisms of the McKinley bill. Mr. Blaine is not a sectional man so far as his range of vision is concerned. He has been in the habit of looking further than his front gate, and he cannot have failed to perceive that the drift of public sentiment among the farmers of the west and northwest is altogether away from the high protection ideas of the republican leaders in congress.

The Kansas senators, Ingalls and Plumb, and Senator Paddock, of Nebraska, have already demonstrated by their votes on certain sections of the McKinley bill that they have heard the news from home. The 80,000 alliancemen in Kansas have already warned Mr. Ingalls that he was sent to Washington to do something else besides making stump speeches against the south, and recently the seventh district republican convention of the same state has adopted a platform endorsing Mr. Blaine's reciprocity scheme, and favoring "such reduction of the tariff as shall cheapen the products of the factory and shop in ratio with farm products." platform of the convention absolves the nominee "from dictation of the party caucus on all economic questions,"

In additon to this the Atkinson Chamoion, a prominent republican organ, and heretofore a high protection paper, has taken the back track without apology to the eastern brethren. It has been a protection organ for thirty years, but now The Champion is "induced at this time to make public its conviction that a protective tariff is one of the many things the west does not want and cannot afford to sustain." This has become the prevailing sentiment among the republican farmers of the west, but in spite of it the eastern republicans continue to urge the McKinley bill on the senate. The situation is an extremely interesting

I got there on Friday evening and found everybody mum as an oyster. I was in despair until at last I heard a man playing a fiddle in one of the stores. I went in at once, and after loating around awhile sked to see the fiddle. When I got to it I drev the bow over the strings, said it was a good one and handed it back; but they saw I could play, and insisted I should try, so I took off my cost and sailed in. From that moment my stock went up. In an hour I had half the folks in town in the store; the proprietor was doing a rushing busi-ness, and so was I. I finally put down the fiddle and addressed the crowd, told them my business and said that, though I was willing to play for them, I must attend to my work first, and invited all who were engaged in fishing to walk up and sign the pledge. Nothing was too good for me. They wanted to fill me up on beer, and I had more cigars than I could smoke. A SELF-BANISHED MAN.

The Peculiar Story of a Former Resident of the States.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 5.—Captain J. W. Smithson came to this city last night from the City of Mexico. This is the first time he has paid a visit to the United States in forty years. He is chemist for the republic of Mexico. The story of his almost life-long, self-imposed banishment from this country has never been told until he repeated it to a reporter tonight.

peated it to a reporter tonight.
"I was one of a party of ten students at Harvard college, who vowed to liberate Professor Webster," explained Captain Smithson, detailing an account of the greatest criminal trial of the century. "We held secret meetings, and by the most blood-curdling oaths bound ourselves to release Profes-sor Webster or die in the attempt. There was a great doubt at the time among the young men who were associated with him as to his guilt, and we could not help thinking that he must be innocent. To this day I have never believed that he had the fairest trial in the world. He was a brilliant man and you can imagine how terrible it seemed to his boys, as he called us, to see him put away like a common criminal. No nihilists were ever banded together more closely.

"It was agreed that the student revealing the plan devised was so sure, so secret and promised to be so effective that no one cared to tell it. I should not be willing to reveal it to this day, but I have ascertained that my fellow conspirators are all dead. Our meetings were held in a small boat in the Charles river. There we were safe from in erference, and there was no danger of being over-eard. We were working under the direction of Professor Webster and one of his most intimate friends. Our plan was to dissolve the locks of the jail doors with a chemical solution, the secret of which I still possess. The formula was accident-ally discovered by Professor Webster, who carried it with him to the grave. I have never revealed the secret, because I have feared the effect that it might have upon the world, and I have done enough harm in my life already. The secret once possession of criminals, it would be impos o keep the doors of the jails of the civilized world closed, since a few drops would prove the destruction of the strongest lock that could be chemist of his age, if not of the century, and the students feared nothing, and would not have been stopped by jail doors. We had two plans to get rid of the guards of the prison, either of which would have proved successful. One was to explode phials filled with gases, driving the jailers out of the rooms. The other was to start a number of fires at the jail by chemical combustion. In the ensuing excitement it would have been com-paratively easy for Professor Webster to have es-caped and made his way to a small boat, where we ent it would have been com were to have disguises ready for him. We had ar-ranged with the captain of a whaling vessel to take an unknown passenger to South America for a good round sum of money.

fault. It was the fault of the lawyers. Professor Webster's case was mismanaged from the start, and if he had had better legal advice he would have been saved. The lawyers were confident to the making Professor Webster and his friends believe this. Besides, I have always thought that after in a strange land. At any rate on the night that we were to carry the enterprise into effect Profess Webster declined to go. He was hung like a declined to go. He was hung like a dog, a sacrifice I have always believed to that Puritar prejudice and to the absurd laws of the day and the clamor of his prosecutors. I was so discouraged and indignant at the result that I boarded the whaler myself and left for the south seas. Webster was professor of chemistry at Harvard University about forty years ago, Professor Park man being also a member of the faculty. Webster man being also a member of the raculty. Webster had borrowed money from the latter, and Parkman was a rather harsh creditor. On the day of his death he had visited Webster in the latter's laboratory, and the two quarreled because Webster could not discharge his debt at once. In his anger Webster struck Parkman a blow with a hammer, which instantly killed him. Horrorstricken at the consequence of his hasty action, Webster, mable to face the consequence of Webster, unable to face the consequences of a confession, determined to destroy the body in his laboratory, and burned it almost completely When suspicion finally caused his arrest and search was made, among the debris of the la tory was found a gold-filled tooth, iden having been in the mouth of Professor Parkman which was one of the strongest bits of evidenc against him. Webster's trial was one of the mos celebrated in American history.

Purses Open When Need Is Known

Too frequently we read about men and women in this great city, who commit suicide because they are in need of food. Recently the New York Times discovered a very sad case of destitution. In answer to the modest appeal on the part of the Times to its readers, more than $1,000 has been sent in. This simply shows that there is no necessity to starve in or about the wealthy city of New York, that the purses of the rich, as well as of those who are not blessed with much wealth are ever open to alleviate suffering. HER FIRST CALLER. The Pitiful Story of An Old New England

From the Detroit Free Press.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Some years ago, Amelia Simpson, a maiden lady of mature years, moved into a New England village to take possession of a small property that had been left her by a deceased uncle.

Miss Simpson was a city spinster, and it happened that while moving into her new home she made some derisive remarks about the village, which remarks reached the ears of the villagers. It was before the days of boycotting, but the spirit of that method existed, and so unanimous were the feelings excited against the newcomer were the feelings excited against the newcome that not a soul in the village called upon her.

The lady herself was unconscious that she had offended, and made several advances in the direction of forming an acquaintance with her neighbors, but was met with a cool mon-recognition every time.

Then she withdrew herself from any communi Then she withdrew herself from any communication with the people, bought all supplies at a neighboring town, and lived alone with a female servant for a score of years. At the end of that time she was taken very ill. A doctor was summoned from a distance by her faithful attendant, and he soon knew that all remedies were useless, and it only remained for him to tell poor Miss Simpson that her earthly pilgrimage was nearly over. This he did in his own way. He was a doc-tor of the old school, and he approached the sub-

Of the Waterworks Committee-Mr. Kontz. After calling the meeting to order, Dr. Alexander, chairman of the health board, stated that Prosessor McCandless had been instructed to make an analysis of the water and submit a report.

"The professor is here now," continued the doctor, "and I suggest we hear from him." Professor McCandless drew from his pocket a roll of paper and began to read. Just as he commenced reading his report, a half-dozen drays, carts and wagons rumbled over the belgian blocks below.

"That noise is too much," said the chemist, as it began to subside, "so I'll just move my chair in the center.' Professor McCandless moved his chair to the center of the room.

Those present moved up until a circle was formed around him.

Then he began reading his report.

"To the Board of Health and the Water Commissioners of the City of Atlanta. Gentlemen: I have the honor to present below a copy of the analysis made on samples of city water taken at the waterworks on the afternoon of August 5th.

The sample marked No. 1 was taken from noon of August 5th.

The sample marked No. 1 was taken from the Harden branch, No. 2 was taken from the intake pipe leading into the reservoir, No. 3 was taken from the filtered water at the works No. 4 is filtered water taken from city

Tests made, also show the presence of dis-solved iron and of excess of alum in the filtered water. An examination of these figures in the light of recent events is instruct-figures in the light of recent events is instructive.

Nos. 1 and 2, the branch and pond water, from being waters of fair average purity for upland surface waters, have become exceedingly impure, and, as is shown by the figures for albuminoid ammonia, are loaded with organic nitrogeneous matter. The figures, however, for common salt has not increased, but remains practically what it has always been. The manifest inference is, that the startling increase in organic putrefactive matter cannot be charged to sewage or surface washings, but must be traced to some other source. In view of the recent disaster at the cotton-seed oil works, the mind naturally looks here for an explanation of the trouble.

I have proved today that the disagreeable, fetid odor of the water is due to the presence of sulphuretted hydrogen gas, a gas which is produced by the decomposition of vegetable or animal matter which contains sulphur. Two theories at once naturally suggest themselves to the mind as to the possible source of this gas, one that it proceeds from animal matter, which, in this case, could only be dead fish, the other that it comes from vegetable matter, which, in this case, could only be dead matter, which, in this case, could only be tead fish; the other, that it comes from vegetable matter, which, in this case, could only be cotton seed oil. I was at first strongly impressed with the notion that the gas must come from dead fish, but this theory was dispelled by the stubborn figure for albumonia in No.1 for the ammonia. minoid ammonia in No. 1, for the ammonia must proceed from the same substance that produces the sulphuretted hydrogen, and consequently, if it came from dead fish ought to be much higher in the pond, where the fish would be, than in the branch where the same that the conversal of the same than the same substances that the same substances the same substances that the same substances the same substances that the same substances the same substances that the same substances the same substances the same substances that the same substances that the same substa the isn would be, than in the branch where they evidently are not. But the converse is true, and the figure for albuminoid ammonia is higher in the branch sample than in the pond. Therefore, I fall back on the cotton-seed oil theory, suggested and supported by Dr. Armstrong. But further work must be done, and analysis made before it can be shown that cotton seed oil contains the suphyrous and nit. ton seed oil, contains, the sulphurous and nit-analysis made before it can be shown that cotton seed oil, contains, the sulphurous and nitrogenous principles, necessary to account for the albuminoid ammonia and sulphuretted hydrogen present in the water. That is a matter for future research. However, it is encouraging to be able to state that when the water is passed through the filters, the decomposing organic matter is removed, as is shown by the analysis of Nos. 3 and 4. The disagreeable gas, it is true, remains, for it is dissolved in the water and is not filtered out. But fortunately it can do no harm in the small quantity in which it is present. In point of fact, it ought to be relished by all lovers of "Blue Lick" and "Green-Briar White" water, for it is a weak solution as compared with those famous Spas. Misfortunes never come singly. I deem it also my duty to inform the board that an excess of alum is also present in the filtered water, causing it to dissolve iron from the pipes my duty to inform the board that an excess of alum is also present in the filtered water, causing it to dissolve iron from the pipes through which it flows, and giving it the peculiar taste noticeable in iron or chalvbeate springs. This fact also gives rise to the belief among many of our citizens that there is oil actually in the water. A prominent citizen said to me: "You can't tell me. I know there's oil in the water, because I see it on the top of the water after it stands all night." He thought he saw oil, but he did not, he saw a thin film of oxide of iron on the surface of the water, and more of it as a red deposit on the bottom of the pitcher. He saw what is familiar to all who have observed the pools in the runways who have observed the pools in the runways from chalybeate mineral water, an iridescent film or Scum stands on top of them very much resembling oil, but it is not, it is oxide of iron.

resembling oil, but it is not, it is oxide of iron. It is barely possible that it may be necessary to use a slight excess of alum, till the present trouble is over, but it should not be tolerated a moment longer than necessary, if necessary at all, or we will very soon begin to hear complaints from our engineers about their boilers being corroded in the same way in which it occurred a year or two ago. Respectfully,

JOHN M. MCCANDLESS.

"Now, my last analysis did show as much impurity as is shown here," said the professor, "but I think the causes are shown."
"Then you think the water thoroughly safe?" saked Mayor Glenn.
"I do," said the chemist. "That smell is the same as the smell at a sulphur spring, and that grease they talk about finding on the pitchers, is iron."
"Then we have a mineral water?" remarked Mayor Glenn.
This made a laugh.
"The iron is healthy, isn't it?" asked the mayor.

"Yes, quite healthy," answered the chemist.
"Then, the long and short of your report," said the mayor, "is that the water is good, and can be used with safety."
"I have no doubt of it," was the answer.
"I have here a letter," said Dr. Baird,
"from the oil works."
The letter was:
We had in store 200 000 callons of oil above.

We had in store 209,000 gallons of oil, about 6,000 barrels, or less, of caustic soda, and about 200 barrels of soap stock. We have gathered from the lake 1,700 barrels, equal to 85,000 gallons of oil, and estimate 300 more taken up by other parties.

oil, and estimate solo more taken up by other parties.

The caustic soda was melted and most of it disappeared. We recovered about 400 barrels caked on the ground near the house. There is still a large amount of soap stock in position on site of oil house, and as this is a pretty solid substance it is not likely that much went to the pond. Respectfully,

L. W. HASKELL, Manager.

To the Board of Health, Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Baird then added his belief to that of Professor McCandless as to the wholesomeness of the water.

or found.
"If there were any dead fish," said Dr. Armstrong, "would you have found them by dragging the lake as you did?"
"Oh, yes," answered the inspector.
"Then I move," said Dr. Bond, "that we endorse the analysis, and I have here a paper."

The paper read:

At a joint meeting of the board of health and the board of water commissioners, Thursday, August 7, 1890, Mr. John M. McCandless, chemist, submitted his report, giving the result of his analyses of four samples of the city water, obtained, respectively, from the stream above the pond, from the pond, from the clear water basin, and from a water plug within the city, and stating his conclusions respecting the present state of the waters represented by these several samples, based upon the analyses. After hearing and discussing this report and other evidence bearing upon the question, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: Resolved, That we endorse the report of Mr. Resolved, That we endorse the report of Mr. John M. McCandless, and offer to the citizens of Atlanta assurances that the filtered water delivered through the pipes is free from any injurious quality, and that the analyses establish the fact that the water is entirely safe for drinking and for general domestic use. It was unanimously adopted.

THE DAY AT LITHIA. The Chautauqua Exercises Continue to

Grow in Interest. LITHIA SPRINGS, Ga., August 7.—[Special.] Dean Wright closed his work at the Piedmont

Dean Wright closed his work at the Piedmont Chautauqua yesterday, much to the regret of everyone who has enjoyed the pleasure of listening to him during the past ten days.

At 2:30 o'clock the Weber reed band entertained the audience with some excellent musical selections, and at 3 o'clock Professor Charles Lane delivered a bright and entertaining lecture on "The History and Analysis of Laughter."

The chorus class, which has been steadily increasing in size and strength, afforded in the the regular rehearsal a pleasant hour's entertainment to those who were present in the tabernacle. At the C. L. S. C. Round Table a conversation was held on methods of work, which proved interesting and helpful.

Appropos to Mr. Maurice Thompson's lecture and reading at Chautauqua, the following note from Professor Charles F. Smith, may be interesting:

interesting:
Maurice Thompson dates his literary career from the publication of a little poem in the Atlantic Monthly early in the seventies. It is said that W. D. Howells, then editor of The Atlantic word there were the seventies of the seventies. Atlantic, read the poem when he opened it to Longfellow, who happened to be in the office, and both were so delighted with it that Mr. Howells wrote the well-known author that he would publish it if a certain line was changed. Sap-sucker was, we believe, the objectionable word, and it was changed, but Mr. Howells has since confessed that the poet was right and himself wrong. Below is the poem:

I heard the woodpecker pecking,
The bluebird tenderly sing;
I turned and looked out of my window,
And lo, it was spring!

A breath from tropical borders, Just a ripple, flowed into my room, And washed my face clean of its sadness, Blew my heart into bloom.

The leaves I have kept for a lifetime,

For the sap of my life goes upward, Obeying the same sweet law Obeying the same sweet law That waters the heart of the maple After a thaw.

I forget my old age and grow youthful, Bathing in wind tides of spring, When I hear the woodpecker pecking, The first bluebird sing.

orators in Georgia, will also deliver an address.

There will be a concert by the Weber band on Rose mound, at 9:30 a. m., and they will also discourse music at the close of each of the speeches of the above named gentlemen. At 2:30 o'clock, a concert by the Weber band and the assembled chorus class, in which solos, duets, trios, quartettes, sextettes, etc., will be introduced. This musical entertainment will have the best vocalists and string and other musicians will be engaged. And the finest music ever heard at any Chautauqua will be discoursed at this concert. Dr. San Ah Brah, a native of India, will deliver a lecture on "Life in India," with impersonations in costume. His lectures are so full of character, habits and modes of living in India, and so popular, that the management have kept him over for Saturday, so that all may have a chance to see and hear him. No one can afford to miss it. Every man, woman and child in Georgia ought to be present at 4o'clock Saturday afternoon to hear this wonderful speaker. His mode of drest, and explanations and descriptions of the people of India, would surprise and interest the best informed people of the land. This is one of the grandest and most wonderful lectures ever delivered in this country. At 7:15 o'clock, p. m., a musical concert under the direction of Professor Alwyn Smith, who is in charge of the assembly chorus class, and Hermann Leopoldt in charge of the Weber reed band and orchestra:

At 8 o'clock a lecture by Dr. Lysander Dickerman, of Boston, Mass., on "Pharoabs, Personal Appearance, Castoms and Characters," illustrated by brilliant stereopticon views. This will be one of the best stereopticon lectures ever seen at Chautauqua. It is full of instruction, the scenes are grand, and will please the most fastidious. This will be one of the most intoresting days yet had at Chautauqua until 9:30 o'clock p. m. There is no question about it. This will be one of the largest gatherings that has ever been witnessed on the Chautauqua grounds. The farmers are coming;

SOCIETY GOSSIP.

Twenty-five or thirty people interested in the arts and science, gathered at the artistic home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lycett at Park Place, Wednesday evening, to enjoy a phonographic recital. The instrument was very cleverly manipulated by Mr. A. M. Payne. Among the pieces rendered were:

Male quartette, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep;" cornet solo, by Theodore Hoch; vocal solo, "Down Went McGinty," George Gaskett; clarionet solo, by Adam G. Werber; Fourth Regiment band, Bombardment Polka; parlor orchestra, selections.

Bombardment Polka; parior orchestra, selec-tions from Erminie; xylophone solo, with orches-tra accompaniment, "Carnival," Fourth Regi-ment band, Centennial March; parlor orchestra, 'New York at Night;" Fourth Regiment band,

'New York at Night;" Fourth Regiment band, Escort of Color.

After this programme several of the ladies sang and recited at the machine, which immediately began a counterfeit presentment of their very tones, the most amusing part being the recitation of "Brother Watkinson's Parting With the Old Congregation," to the instrument by little Sadie Lycett, which added originality, to say the least, to the reportoire of Edison's latest invention. Among those present were: Miss Mattie Henderson, Misses Mamie and Julia Griggs, Mrs. and Miss Stocker, Mrs. and Miss Williams, Misses Mamie and Dollie Belle, Mrs. W. I. Evans Misses Mamie and Dollie Belle, Mrs. W. I. Evans Mrs. Ohl, Miss Brooks, of St. Louis, Captain Lyman Hall, Mr. R. Corden, Mr. H. Storer, Mr. Payne, Mr. Harris, of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs William Lycett. Everybody voted Mr. Payne many thanks for an instructive as well as a pleasant evening spent, and the vocal and instrumental solos rendered by several of the talented musicians present, and the charming recitations given by intile Miss Sadie Lycett, made the evening one complete in artistic pleasure.

When the ball struck her, she dropped the pistol and fell across the bed, beside which she was standing when it was fired.

The report of the pistol and the screams of the woman created quite a sensation in the neighborhood and a large crowd gathered around the place.

The "Alaska" Refrigerator, the Choice of the People of the South.

There no longer exists in the minds of the pub-lic any doubt that the ALASKA REFRICKRATOR does produce dry, cold air in its provision cham-ber. A practical use for many years in various countries and climates has proved beyond question that its theory is correct.

The peculiar and scientific construction of the ALASKA creates a thorough and constant circula-tion, by which all vapors arising from foods in the provision chamber are condensed in the ice pan, provision chamber are condensed in the ice pan, and run off with the melting ice.

Most refrigerators are so constructed that vapors from various kinds of food are chilled to bead drops of water within the provision chamber. Hence such refrigerators are always damp and deleterious to health; and hence the instruction the frequently wing the maisture from the rec-

In the ALASKA no vapors are allowed to remain; but, by a perfect circulation of air, they are drawn through the flues into the ice chest and condensed

By thus removing the vapor all odor is removed—for the odor is in the vapor—and dry, pure, coid air falls into the provision chamber.

The provision chamber of the ALASKA never conts from condensation, but is always clean and free from foul odor. It is on account of these excellent refrigerating qualities that the ALASKA has become noted for being entirely free from monid, or mildew, or unpleasant odors, regardless of the length of time perishable articles of food may have been kept in it.

THE BILL REVIVED.

THE FORCE BILL REPORTED TO THE SENATE.

THE PROBABILITY OF ITS PASSAGE.

Slight Modifications from the Lodge Bill, But It Remains Partisan and Sectional

Washington, August 7.—[Special.]—The fact that the revised force bill was reported to the senate today by a strict party vote in the committee, has caused a feeling of anxiety among the democrats. However, the report was forced by Grandma Hoar, in order to offset, if possible, the wave of opposition to the bill which is rolling through the country and the republican party. The fact that Senator Teller voted with his party to report it, appears to favor its passage. How-ever, he reserved the right to offer amendments in the senate and refused to recede from his position against changing the rules. Senator Teller, like every other republican, would vote for the bill if a vote can be reached, but a vote without the adoption of gag rules is almost an impossibility. Thus, unless the rules be changed, the death of the bill is practically assured, and if Plumb, Teller, Wolcott, Edmunds and others hold to their present positions, there is no possibility of gag rules.

THE BILL MODIFIED.

The bill as reported is materially modified, and on its surface appears non-sectional in character, yet it is distinctly sectional, and is so worded as to be severely enforced in certain southern districts. The bill simply says its provisions are to be made applicable when application is made to the circuit judge. It does not name any specified number of people who shall make application. Thus, in the north, application will not be made, while in every southern district republicans will apply, and the bill will be enforced. Again, under the amended bill, registration, voting and certification are left to the state authorities, except where application for federal inspection is made from the entire district. Then the federal returning board comes in, and if objection is made to their certification the republican circuit judge can certify as to who is elected, and from his certification to the clerk of the house there it no appeal. The member takes his seat, votes in organizing the house, and then if contest is entered, the house will decide whether or not he shall retain his seat.

The bill is more shrewdly worded and briefer than the Lodge bill, but with the exception of the bayonet clause beneath the surface, there is little difference. It is infamous in the extreme. Still, Hoar, Spooner and the rabid gang have an idea the opposition republicans will not look beneath the surface, and will accept and aid in passing the bill.

In a prepared interview given below in the Associated Press report, Hoar tries to explain how moderate and conservative the bill pt to prove that it is not sectional in its character. It is yet a bill the people of this country will not submit to, and unless material modifications are made it cannot pass. Indeed, public opinion is already so materially crystallized against a force bill in any shape, that it will be certain defeat for the ablicans if they fail to let it die.

Today's game was simply a bluff at Blaine's hand, and the chances are the bluffing hand will be the losing hand.

The substance of the law proposed in the bill," said Senator Hoar to an Associated Press reporter, "is this: Whenever application is made to a judge of circuit court for the inspection of the election in any town or city of 20,000 inhabitants or upward, or of any county, township, parish, or precinct, officers may be appointed for that purpose, three in each precinct, of whom not re than two shall be of one political party It is made their duty to supervise, inspect and witness the election, but the registratian and election and certificates of the result thereof left in the hands of the local authorities. When inspection is provided for the whole congressional district, however, there shall be three state commissioners appointed by the court, not more than two of whom shall be of one political party, who shall issue a certificate of the result of the in that district. The cert made shall be used by the clerk of the house in making up his roll of members. Any per-son who shall make, under oath, a statement that he believes he is entitled to a certificate of election, may have the case examined by a judge of the circuit court. If the judge finds that the certificate of the commisers is not correct he shall issue a certificate, and that certificate shall be final until the case is acted on by the house of representatives. It shall be prima facie evidence of the right of the person named therein to a seat in the house. The rest of the provisions are merely an extension York state for a number of years." THE AUGUSTA POSTOFFICE Collector Walter Johnson has been in Washington for two days, and if what the Georgia republicans here say is correct, he has other usiness of some importance besides aiding in getting a re-count of the population of Co umbus. Colonel Jack Brown says he is looking after the Augusta postoffice, and that "Boss" Buck will be here in a few days to aid him.

of the law, which has been enforced in New

"The scheme now," said Colonel Brown today, "is to have the colored lawyer, Lyons, of Augusta, appointed postmaster at that city in place of J. T. Denning, whose nomination now hung up. An inspector was in Augusta a few days ago, examining into the charges made against Denning. He has made no official report yet, and if he does not within the next few days, it will become evident that Denning's name will be withdrawn, and anappointed. The negro, Lyons, I have reason to believe, will be the man, provided R. R. Wright's consent can be secured. Lyons is a bright and eminently respectable colored man. I have doubts, however, if he will prove acceptable to the people of Augusta, but if Buck recommends they will have to stand it.

The Old Postmaster Reappointed. Samuel W. Griffin, the old postmaster at Quitman, under the Arthur administration, who was deposed by Mr. Turner when Cleveland came in, was reappointed today. He is not the man the Quitman people want, but they prefer him to a negro.

AT WORK ON THEIR OWN HOOK. Work of the Tillman Adherents in the City of Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 7.—[Special.]—
The democratic primary election for delegates to the county convention will be held tomorrow. A big vote will be polled, and the straightout democrats confidently count on snowing under the Tillmanites. The latter have put one ticket in only three of the eight wards, but it is said they will have out tickets in several other wards. J. D. Murphy, who runs the Tillman machine, said tonight: "We have set several traps for the straightout democratic and they have fallen into them. We were refused representation on the board of managers of the election, and were also refused an inspection of the registration books in the primaries tomorrow. There will probably be other frauds, and we propose, therefore, to hold our own convention, and send a delegation to the state convention; and as sure as there is heaven, our delegation will City of Charleston.

be seated, and the straightouts turned out. I don't care whether we vote at the primary tobe seated, and the straightouts turned out. I don't care whether we vote at the primary tomorrow, orlnot. We are going to send our own delegation." He added that it was not at all improbable that the Tillmanite county convention would also nominate county officers. The situation is a peculiar one. There is scarcely time for a convention to be called, and it is supposed that the Tillmanite plan is to nominate a ticket in each ward, vote for them tomorrow, and instead of going into the democratic convention on Monday, organize their own convention and go ahead on their own hook.

THE PRISONER IS FREE.

The Sad Story of a Young Man Who Loved His Mother.

Montgomery, Ala., August 7.—[Special.]—A peculiarly strange and sad case has just been unearthed here by the pardon of a life convict, Alonzo E. Bland, of Chilton county. The governor late yesterday evening ordered a pardon to be issued, and today Bland, who had been convicted of the terrible crime of matricide, walked out from the prison walls a free man after serving seven years of his term. This case has been before the governor for years, and the papers on file in the executive rans case has been before the governor for years, and the papers on file in the executive office are voluminous. Young Bland and his mother and three brothers lived on and cultivated a little farm about two miles from Verbena, in Chilton county. Alonzo was very effeminate from childhood, caring nothing for the rougher sport which were so strong an attraction for his brothers. He became an attraction for his brothers. He became an adept in household duties, and ironing for the family, and his spare time at nights he spent with the old lady at the country fireside, mending clothing worn by the family or in knitting the winter's supply of socks.

Thus was the early youth of Alonzo Bland spent, and when the older brothers, grown to manhood, married and left the homestead, he remained behind to care for his aged mother during the decline of her life.

3 On the 31st of December, 1882, young Bland went to the home of the nearest neighbor, and a On the 31st of December, 1882, young Bland went to the home of the nearest neighbor, and informed them his mother had fallen in a fit, and asked them to come to the house to aid in taking care of her. They found young Bland, who had proceeded them, sitting on the porch in tears, his face buried in his hands. When approached young Bland told them his mother was dead. The only mark about her which had any appearance of violence, was a slight concussion on the side of the head, which young Bland claimed she received when she oung Bland claimed she received when she fell in the fit, by striking against the table. The physicians examined the wound, probing it, and they decided that it was a bullet wound, and the ball had followed the skull around, and the ball had followed the skull around, to the rear and passed out without fracturing the bone, but that the shock was sufficient to cause death.

An inquest was held and young Bland was charged with the crime. Bland stoutly denied the charge, and declared he had no pistol. He was tried and convicted, however, by a conceded mistake of his counsel, who sought to prove the defentant of unsound mind. The case has excited the widest interest in Chilton for years, and some of the wealthy and most for years, and some of the wealthy and most influential citizens took up the boy's fight and worked faithfully for his pardon, which has at last come, after seven years weary working and waiting.

THE DOCTORS TALK

ABOUT THE ELECTRICAL EXECU-

NO RECORD OF THE VOLTAGE MADE. Dr. Spitzka Denies that He Ordered On the

Second Current-Dr. Southwick Pronounces It a Success NEW YORK, August 7 .- Deputy Coroner William T. Jenkins returned to this city today, after having witnessed the Kemmler execution. He said he believed that if the current had been kept on continuously, Kemmler would have died easily. He did not know who it was that ordered the current shu off after the first shock, when it was thought that life was extinct. He thinks killing is preferable by electricity than by hanging, pro-vided the current is continuous until life is extinct.

AURURN, N. Y., August 7.—Warden Durston stated this afternoon that the remains of Kemmiler still lie in the room in the prison where the autopsy was held yesterday. He has not decided where the remains will be finally buried. A subject which continues to the execution is the record of the voltage of the shock which killed him. It has been generally supposed that the first shock was 1,300 volts, and the second between 1,500 and 2,000. Electrician Express who was it the durantees to control the second between 1,500 and 2,000. Electrician Express who was in the durantees to control the second between 1,500 and 2,000. trician Barnes, who was in the dynamo room, said to one of the physicians in attendance yesterday that at no time was the voltage more than 1,100, and that it frequently fell to 800.

Dr. Daniels, of Buffalo, who performed the delicate work of removing the brain and spinal cord of the dead man, at the autopsy, has gone home, taking with him part of the spinal cord, and other specimens for experiment. It is learned today for the first time that in a consultation of dectors on Tuesday night, Warden Durston made a proposition to hold the execution at 9 o'clock that night, but it was determined by a vote of those present that it would be better to hold it in the day time.

DR. SPITZKA INDIGNANT. DR. SPITZKA INDIGNANT.

New York, 'August 7.—Dr. Spitzka, who was present at the execution of Wm. Kemmler, at Auburn prison yesterday, makes the following statement: "The assertion attributed to a physician from Buffalo that the undersigned ordered the cur-rent: stopped, or in any way directed the steps rendered necessary at Kemmler's execution, is utterly unfounded. No one in the execution chamber knew or could know anything about the voltage, nor did any one order the current turned off. It was turned off in accordance with a previous understanding. Dr. Carlos MacDonald and myself, between whom and myself complete harmony existed, in being asked by the warden what time should be taken, agreed to fifteen seconds, and actually seventeen were allowed to elapse. When Kemmler's death appeared doubtful, I sug-gested, in a hurried way, to the warden to have gested, in a hurried way, to the warden to have it instantly turned on again, and it was the warden who gave the order then and there. I went to Auburn solely to make an examination of the brain, and not as an assistant executioner. The dynamo, as judged by the action of Kemmler's body, acted very irregularly. The source of this, it will be interesting to ascertain, as well as the animus which dictated the gratuitous and untrue statements of the person alluded to, if really made by him. As an avowed opponent, and as one known to be such, of the electrical methods, I went to Auburn under these circumstances, it was scarcely consistent for me to volunteer as a performer of that method. Had either of my associates, Dr. Carlos either of my associates, Dr. Carlos MacDonald, or myself, been able to anticipate MacDonald, or myself, been able to anticipate such mistatements, being made, we certainly should have declined to act in the medical capacity which we alone held. My sole suggestion was coincided with by all present. The turning on of the second current was dictated by humanity, in view of the doubts as to the complete destruction of life."

DR. SOUTHWICK INTERVIEWED. BUFFALO, N. Y., August 7 .- Dr. A. P. Southwick, father of the elecrical execution law, said today in an interview:

"I feel just as I have always felt on the matter. There is nothing against the system at all, and the fact is there has been a great deal of senseless, sensational talk about the execution. For instance, the big story in regard to the sickening spectacle of froth, saliva, etc., coming from Kemmler's mouth is ridiculous. It was a perfectly natural thing, and was caused by the muscular contraction of the stomach. It was nothing unusual at all. In fact, a party of ladies could sit in a room where an execution of this kind sit in a room where an execution of this kind was going on and not see anything repulsive whatever. If the mistake of ordering off the current so quickly had not been made, there would have been none of this talk. The burning of the flesh was also exaggerated. That was caused simply by the fact that the sponge under the electrode was too small. A light current was passing through then, and the sponge having dried out the electrode just touched the skin. I think Kemmler's nerve affected those there about as much as any thing. It looked to me, though, as an evidence of mental incapacity. He seemed to be without fear and helped to adjust the straps in a way that was simply though, as an evidence of mental incapacity. He seemed to be without fear and helped to adjust the straps in a way that was simply astonishing. No, sir, I do not consider that this will be the last execution by electricity. There will be lots of them. It has been proved that the idea is correct, and I think the law is the best one. The execution was a success. Kemmler never knew what happened to him and died absolutely without pain."

Dale or Nutall, as the case may be, is at liberty.

He arrived in the city yesterday, and will go about his business as usual today.

His bond was fixed at $1,200, and several of those who stood his security before signed the new bond.

The motion for an arrest of judgment, and also the motion for a new trial, were prepared by his counsel, and filed in the superior court of Paulding county.

The motion for an arrest of judgment is based on the simple plea of the statute of limitations.

The motion for a new trial embodies this, and also the points that the charge of the court is faulty in the matter of proving that the effense was not known, and further, that the evidence of the former marriage was not clear and sufficient to warrant the charge of the court. In addition to these the usual grounds are set forth for demanding a new trial.

Judge Maddox set the hearing of the medians for Santamber 8th in Rome at which time

Judge Maddox set the hearing of the mo-tions for September 8th, in Rome, at which time the fate of the defendant will be decided. Counsel for the defense seem very confident of securing the acquittal of their client.

A Worker for Nesbitt.—Ex-Senator Perry, of Cuthbert, has been in Atlanta in attendance on the convention. He was a zealous friend and worker of Mr. Nesbitt's for commissioner of agriculture, and to him is due, to a large extent, the success of Mr. Nesbitt. Senator Perry is a wonderful worker, and when he espouses the cause of a friend, nothing is left undone that will go towards gaining a victory. He has entirely recovered his health, and is looking strong again.

The Monkeys Are Here.—The pair of monkeys, bought for the Gress zoo by Howell Woodward, the juvenile editor of The Boys' Weekly, reached the city yesterday morning, and are now snugly quartered in the menagerie at Grant park. Howell raised the money to pay for the monkeys by a subscription in his paper, and is so proud of them that he spent the entire day at the park. The monkeys are line specimens of their kind, black ringtails, and have only been landed from South America a few weeks. Editor Woodward's contribution to the zoo adds much to its attractivensa.

They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in

They Should Be Avoided—A Few Points in Regard to Them.

When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many fils He inflicted upon his fallen creation none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its rayages and dangerous to life, robbing one errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without eausing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I have laid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very least that accesses any two ways to the state of the property of the nanecessary to ask you it is. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory results. Many ladies are affected with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from availing yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. The Atlanta and Florida to the Front.
The first bale of new cotton coming to Atlanta this season, reached here last evening via the Atlanta and Florida railroad, from Dawson, Ga., consigned to Maddox, Rucker & Co.

The Atlanta and Florida always opens th season by hauling the first shipment. The first car of melons for the past season, was secured and handled by this lipe, and now the first bale of cotton of the new crop arrives via The Atlanta and Florida is an Atlanta en-telegram yesterday.

The executive committee of the Southern The executive committee of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association met yes, terday, but failed to agree on certain matters, and adjourned to meet today. At 11 o'clock today, after an hour's discussion in regard to insured bills of lading, and a few other changes in the regular agreement it was decided to continue the association for another year from August 1st. Annual meeting theu adjourned the rate committee to meet today.

ON TO DECATUR. A Large Force of Workmen Busy on the Dummy Line.

On to Decatur! The new dummy line from Atlanta to Deca-tur is being rapidly constructed.

Messrs. R. M. Brooks & Sons, contractors, who have charge of the construction of the road, have a force of 100 men and 200 mules on the line.

In six or eight weeks the work will be completed, and another easy route to and from Decatur will be established.

After this work is done, Messrs. Brooks & Sons expect to be engaged for many months in the work of road making, street grading, laying out parks and other work of a similar nature.

They will do an immense amount of work in their line, as the demands of the city will re-quire unusual exertions in that line. THE WEATHER.

DIRECT TO EUROPE.

A MOVEMENT ON FOOT AMONG THE FARMERS

To Ship Their Own Cotton and Thus Save the issions Charged by the Factors and Middle Men.

Georgia farmers are on their mettle. The day of their independence is rapidly lrawing near.

For a long time they have been compelled to buy and sell through a long line of factors and middlemen, all of whom took a little toll and middlemen, all of whom took a little toll as the goods or products passed through the mill, until the Georgia farmer was obliged to pay a high advance on all he purchased, and lose a large percentage on all that he put in the market. But a change has come over the spirit of their dreams. The farmers have learned that they can improve on the old methods. can improve on the old methods.

They find that they have rights, and they are going to proceed to demand all to which they are entitled.

THE OPENING GUN. Fulton county alliance, made up of some of the most intelligent and far-seeing farmers in the state, have fired the first gun. And its echoes will reverberate throughout the length and breadth of the land before the matter is settled.

matter is settled.

The delegates from the various suballiances met in the library of the capitol yesterday, and the following resolution, which had been drawn by Mr. T. N. Jackson, and had been unanimously endorsed by all the suballiances, was adopted:

was adopted:
Whereas, it is important that the cotton of the farmers of Georgia and of the south should be sold in the best market, with the least possible coar before it reaches such market; and Whereas, A large portion of the southern cotton goes to Europe; therefore, be it Resolved, That the trastees of the alliance exchange who are to meet in Atlanta on the 18th of this month be, and they are hereby requested, to make arrangements by which that portion of southern cotton which goes to Europe shall be shipped from southern ports directly to the consumers in Europe.

GOYERNOR GORDON'S APPROVAL.

GOVERNOR GORDON'S APPROVAL.

Of course this movement on the part of the farmers of Georgia means a great deal for the cotton-growing states.

It means a new era in the adjustment of buying and selling among those who till the soil for a livelihood.

To make the resolution, if possible, more emphatic, it was presented to Governor Gordon with the request that he add his endorsement. GOVERNOR GORDON'S APPROVAL.

Without any hesitation at all Governor Gordon attached his signature and a hearty endorsement to the resolutions.

President Austin called the meeting to order at 10 o'clock, and it was stated that the principal business before the body was the consideration of the exhibit to be made at the There was not a suballiance but what sent in

There was not a suballiance but what sent in a most encouraging report, and the farmers all over the county are making preparations to get up just such a display for Fulton county as has never been made before. Reports from all over the county were very encouraging, and the alliancemen of Fulton will get up a superb exhibit.

They have everything necessary to make Fulton the banner county at the expesition, and they are going to leave nothing undone to accomplish this result.

A Very Good Reason.

Druggists who are selling Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. Bull, of Louisville, Ky., Syrup, made by Dr. Bull, of Louisville, Ky., wonder that its sales increase so rapidly. At first, they began to buy a quarter or a half dozen, but found that amount was sometimes sold in a single day, and now they say they are obliged to buy in thalf gross and gross lots in order to keep a supply on hand. There is a very good reason why Smith's Tonic Syrup should sell so well. There is not much newspaper advertising done, but it advertises itself. Every bottle used is an advertisement, for it does exactly what it is expected to do. It will break up the chills and fever in less time than any other drug. It will prevent and quickly cure colds, influenza, la grippe, etc. In fact, it can be substituted for quinine in every instance, and with better satisfaction, for its effect is more certain and reliable, and it never leaves the unpleasant effects that quinine sometimes does.—Marion Co. ORMEWOOD PARK is that beautiful tract of 100 acres just east of Grant Park and north of the Confederate Veterans. Home property. Itis within one-fourth mile of Grant Park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line as it goes around the park. The dummy line to the home runs for a half mile through Ormswood, thus making every lot in the park very accessible. A large force of hands under the direction of Major Charles Boeckh is now at work grading out avenues and drives. A beautiful avenue of feet wide, leading direct from Grant Park and the Boulevard, has already been graded through Ormswood, thus affording one of the most attractive drives around the eity. Drive out there this evening and see for yourself. Mr. Harry Woodward has just completed a handsome $4,500 residence at the head of Ormswood avenue, and several more of equal value will be erected shortly by some of our best citizens. The entire 100 acres has been subdivided in the most advantageous manner, and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will erect desirable residences we will sell these lots on most liberal terms, it being the object of the owners to build up this beautiful park with first-class houses rather than sell to speculators. There is no location about the city that is as free from every objectionable feature as this property, and if you seek a suburban home you can do no better than select a lot here. Our prices are from 100 to 200 per cent below that asked for property equally as destrable in any other section.

MRS. KISER'S DEATH.

AFTER LONG YEARS OF SUFFERING SHE PASSES AWAY.

The End of the Beautiful and Christian Life of One Who Was a Devoted Wife and Loving and Tender Mother.

Mrs. M. C. Kiser is dead. After long years of suffering she passed peacefully away at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, at the family residence, No. 265

Mrs. Kiser was born in Newton county on May 20, 1855. She was Miss Hersie J. Scott, the accomplished daughter of Dr. Scott, of

She was educated at Convers Female College, where she graduated in the spring of 1873.

of 1873.

During the next winter she was wedded to Mr. M. C. Kiser. The marriage occurred in December, 1873.

Never did a youthful pair begin wedded life under happier auspices. They came to live in Atlanta, where Mr. Kiser's business interests were, and their married life was the realization of a beautiful dream.

Four children were born to them, two of whom, Willie and Johnnie, survive their mother, the other two having died at a tender age.

age.

Mrs. Kiser became a member of the First Baptist church in 1875, and was ever a consistent Christian, carrying into every walk of her life the faith and devotion of a true and earnest believer in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Eight years ago she was stricken down with an illness from which she never recovered, and since that time she has been an invalid. She had all the attention that skilled physicians and tender nursing could render during all the long weary years of her illness.

Two weeks ago she grew worse, and despite every effort; she continued sinking until death came yesterday morning.

Her life ebbed out as peacefully and placidly as if she had never known a moment of suffering, and, surrounded by her grief-stricken family, her spirit took its flight to a better lead.

Never was there a truer and more devoted wife, a tenderer and more loving mother. And those who knew her knew her but to love her. The funeral services will occur at the resi-dence, at 10 o'clock this morning, and the fol-lowing friends of the family have been relowing friends of the family have been requested to act as pail bearers and to meet at the residence at 9:30 o'clock:

Charles D. Montgomery, J. D. Owings, R. O. Douglas, C. J. Sullivan, R. A. Monteith, James B. Wallace, H. H. Cabaniss and Andrew P. Stewart.

Dr. J. M. Britton, of Augusta, and Rev. Dr. J. W. Lee, of this city, will conduct the exercises.

There will be music by the choir of the First Baptist church, and a large number of friends will be present to pay their last respects to the memory of their friend. The interment will occur at Oakland.

MADE DRUNK,

Then Married to a Man She Did Not Love. That is the gist of a sensational divorce suit filed in the superior court yesterday. It is a brief story, but it furnishes a very novel and unusual situation, at least.

The parties to the suit are white people, very well known in Atlanta.

They are Mrs. L. Dyer and Mr. William E. Dyer, Mrs. Dyer being the plaintiff, praying a total divorce from the defendant, with whom she avers she never lived at all since the time of their marriage.

the time of their marriage.

Mrs. Dyer allleges that for two years her hand had been sought in marriage by Mr. Dyer, but that constantly, time and again, she had refused him.

byer, but that constantly, time and again, she had refused him.

Finally, on the 3d of last December, she further states, the defendant got her under the influence of liquor and then had the matrimonial knot tied by a justice of the peace. As soon as she recovered her senses she says she never lived with her spouse at all.

Here is the petition, in full, setting forth the facts, as it was entered on the docket yesterday. It is spicy, even for a divorce libel:

The petition of Mrs. L. Dyer shows that she married William E. Dyer on the 23d of December, 1889; that said Dyer had pressed his suit for nearly two years, but she had decidedly refused him at all times.

That on the night of December 23, 1889, he, by the use of fraudulent means, succeeded in by the use of fraudulent means, succeeded in by the use of fraudulent means, succeeded in marrying her, said fraud consisting of intoxicating drunks until she did not know what she was doing, and only remembered very indistinctly what was said or done about her marriage; that said marriage was entirely against her will and wishes, and when she recovered from the influence of said intoxicants so fraudulently used upon her, she made said Dyer leave her, and has never lived with him at all.

THE RACES

The most generally useful medicine is Ayer's Pills. As a remedy for the various diseases of the stomach, liver, and bowels, these Pills have no equal. Their sugar-coating causes them not only to be easy and pleasant to take, but preserves their medicinal integrity in all climates and for any reasonable length of time. The best family medicine, Ayer's Pills are, also, unsurpassed for the use of travelers, soldiers, sallors, campers, and pioneers. In some of the most critical cases, when all other remedies have failed,

THE RACES

At Piedmont Park, August the 14th—A Great Crowd Will Witness Them.

The races and elephant show at Piedmont park next Thursday are attracting great attention. Mr. Hughes has arranged an attractive programme, and some of the finest runners and trotters in the south will appear on the track. There will be two running and one trotting race. In addition to these, there will be a road race, in which those of the town who have fast horses may contest.

The indication now is that there will be an immense crowd to witness the races. The news is that large excursions are coming from all parts of the state to witness the races and midsummer festival. A gentleman who is just from southwest Georgia says: "You would be astonished at the crowd that will be here on the 14th. I have visited a large number of the leading towns in middle and southwest Georgia, and I find great interest manifested everywhere. The people are coming by the train load. I understand there will be a train of ten cars from Selma, Ala. The fact that Atlanta is the only city in the south that can boast of an elephant, and the great interest manifested in the races is a drawing card, and you need not be surprised if there are not over twenty thousand people here on that day. The people want to see Atlanta's elephant, and you bet they are coming."

coming."
This is a sample of the talk that is going on everywhere. Atlanta will furnish her visitors splendid races and the greatest trades display ever seen in this country on that day. So come. Let everybody come.

It is to be a joking match.

The idea is to get together a lot of people who are locally famous for their capacity for telling good jokes. prove effective.

"In the summer of 1864 I was sent to the Annapolis hospital, suffering with chronic diarrhea. While there, I became so reduced in strength that I could not speak and was compelled to write everything I wanted to say. I was then having some 25 or 30 stools per day. The doctors ordered a medicine that I was satisfied would be of no benefit to me. I did not take it, but persuaded my nurse to get me some of Dr. Ayer's Pills. About two o'clock in the afternoon I took six of these pills, and by midnight began to feel better. In the morning the doctors came again, and after deciding that my symptoms were more favorable, gave me a different medicine, which I did not use, but took four more of the pills instead. The next day the doctors came to see me, and but took four more of the pills instead. The next day the doctors came to see me, and thought I was doing nicely, (and so did I). I then took one pill a day for a week. At the end of that time, I considered myself cured and that Ayer's Pills had saved my life. I was then weak, but had no return of the disease, and gained in strength as fast as could be expected."—F. C. Luce, Late Lieut. 56th Regt. Mass. Vol. Infantry.

THE MEAT WAS RICH WHICH WAS SERVED UP AT THE PUTNAM BARBECUE.

An Ovation to the Farmers by Hon. R. W. Patterson-A Famous Old Barbecue Pit-Prosperous Reports.

EATONTON, Ga., August 7.—[Special.]—Putnam can truly be called the land of hog and hominy. The county fairly turned herself loose in celebration of the annual barbebecue of the Putnam County Alliance. Fully three thousand people eat barbecue at Ava-lona today. It has been the custom of the al-liance since its organization in Putnam to give two or more barbecues each year at some designated place in the county and there meet together with their brother farmers and friends, and spend a day of pleasure after crops have been laid by: The barbecne given last year will be remembered as the most successful ever given in the county up to that time, but the one today undoubtedly surpasses any of a previous date.

Old Avalona church and grounds are situ-ated in a beautiful grove, within a stone's throw of the magnificent country home of Dr. Walker, a prominent allianceman, and up to a few months ago vice president of Putnam Alliance, when he refused re-election. It is just the place for such a gathering. Seven miles from Eatonton on the Middle Georgia and Atlantic railroad. This place has become famous for the many great barbecues held there in years past and the grounds yet bear the marks of previous similar occasions. To-day the delicious odor of barbecued meat was again wafted on the gentle morning breeze to the visitor on approaching the vicinity and was the occasion of a halt. At an early hour people began to arrive. They came from the extreme portion of south Putnam, and by 11 o'clock the grounds were thronged. Every sub-alliance in the county was well represented. Jasper and Morgan counties were also represented.

The first speaker was Hon. R. W. Patterson, of Macon. He was introduced by Judge J. S. Turner, of Eatonton, who took occasion to refer to the fact that the Putnam county alliance had succeeded financially and in many other ways. In fact, whatever they undertook they have been crowned with success. An alliance that had not been drawn into polities, but one that worked with everybody else for the town and the county.

Mr. Patterson spoke for fully an hour and drew tears to a great many eyes as he depicted colored children going to school and enjoying the advantages now given them, while numberless white children were compelled to remain at home and work.

After dinner, Professer Zettler of Macon public schools, spoke on the management of public schools. He was introduced by H. R. DeJarnette, and entertained the people with a sound practical speech.

After the speeches Vice President John T.

Dennis offered the following resolutions, which were adopted: Resolved, first, That we hereby tender to Colonel R. W. Patterson and Professor B. M. Zettler our thanks for their eminently practical and appropriate addresses, Resolved, second, That we request Colonel R. W. Patterson to furnish us with a copy of his address in order that it may be published in "The Southern Alliance Farmer," and thus bring the matter before those most deeply in-

In a conversation with Dr. W. S. Walker, today, as to the condition of Putnam's alliance, etc., he said they were never in a better condition than at present, and that it has been a grand success in Putnam county. He notices that there is at least 40 per cent less credit than heretofore, and everything is in a flourishing condition.

Pelot's brass band, of Eatonton, discoursed et music for the occasion under the lled leadership of Professor George P. Pelot, There were present today representatives from Putnam and Jasper, and the senator from the twenty-eighth district. All said they were for John B. Gordon for United States senator.

Hon. John T. Dennis has been elected vice

Hon. John T. Dennis has been elected vice president of the Putnam county alliance. He is the right man in the right place.

It was agreed to have another barbecue on August 29th at Philadelphia church in this county. Some distinguished Georgians will be invited to be present and address the people. It is to be said to the credit of the Middle Georgia and Atlantie Railroad that the people from Eatonton and along the line of road were moved in good time and to the satisfaction of everybody. isfaction of everybody.

THE PEOPLE AT A PICNIC.

They Listen to Speeches from Lawson,

Colley and Olive. CARNESVILLE, Ga., August 7 .- [Special.]-The candidates and political picnic at Franklin Springs, nine miles from here, some days ago, was largely attended, there being from seven hundred to one thousand people pres ent, and a most enjoyable picnic it was.

Congressional politics were at fever heat and all the candidates, were on hand. The three candidates for congress, Messrs. Olive, Colley and Lawson all agreed to address the people in the order named above. J. B. Parks, of this place, introduced all the candidates in his original and happy style, and they proceeded with but very little preliminaries to the subject of congressional matters. Colonel J. T. Olive, of Oglethorpe, was the first speaker. He discussed the tariff, sub-treasury bill and the Olive bill. His position is that the Olive bill is a national issue, and it ought to come in the United States congress and there ought to be national legislation stead of state upon the subject, and his bill was aimed and intended for all kinds of trusts and combines. He favors the sub-treasury bill and thinks it constitutional and will benefit the masses of the people of the Hon. F. H. Colley, of Wilkes, followed in his inimitable style and made a fine impres-sion by his wit and humor. He favors the re-duction of the tariff to an amount large enough for the support of the government only and, favors an inflation of currency to carry on the business of the country, so as to prevent corners and speculation at the expense of the farmers. He appears not to be riding any particular hobby and is wanting to go to congress to represent the whole people of the eighth district, regardless of any class. He claims to be a farmer and is identified with the agricultural interests of the country in a way that he can faithfully represent them in the halls of congress.

The picnickers adjourned to dinner and in the afternoon Judge Thomas G. Lawson, of Putnam, took his turn at the audience he made an earnest effort and explained his position. He favors a reduction of the tariff to reduce it low enough for revenue only, and not to burden the people with heavy taxation and to increase the surplus in the treasury. He is out of the practice of law, and is a nominal president of a railroad at a small salary, and has no interest in it, only to handle the profits that it earns for the use of the stockholders. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and has been for some time.

He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and has been for some time.

The speakers were all listened to with attention, and our people now know more of them than they did before.

The Farmers' Alliance held its quarterly meeting here, Wednesday last, and recommended Dr. T. G. Underwood for representative from this county. There is some dissatisfaction in the alliance, and it is highly probably he will have opposition, and perhaps, be defeated, as the alliance methods of making officers is not popular here, and it is thought there will be a kick at it that will result in the defeat of its candidate.

Great Damage Done on Lake St. Louis and Vicinity.

Montreal, August 6.—A cyclone of unparalleled violence in this locality swept over Lake St. Louis and St. Lawrence, in the vicinity of Montreal, last evening, doing great damage on land and water. At the moment the storm burst, the principal event of the cance meet at Isle Cadcux lake—the association trophy for first-class yachts—was being sailed. The yachts competing were a mile out on the lake when suddenly the sky grew black and the wind swept down the lake with terrific violence and instantly every yacht in the race was upset. It is not known how many, if any, were drowned.

race was upset. It is not known how many, if any, were drowned.

At Valios, Point Claire, St. Annes and Dorval great damage was done to property. Houses were unroofed, barns were struck by lightning, while many small buildings were swept completely away. At Lachine the greatest damage was done. There the immense building of The Dominion Bridge Company and the equally large structures of The Canadian Scrow and Barbed Wire factories were unroofed and left in ruins.

A STORM IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. LEONAED, N. B., August — A heavy thunder and hall storm accomponied by a cyclone, did considerable damage in the parish of Stanns, Madawaka county, yesterday. Two Chattanooga Women Out of the Way.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., August 7.—[Special.] Alice Blacklidge, a prostitute twenty years of age, died today from an overdose of morphine. She was an important witness against Bud Gordon, held here for double murder, and the evidence before the coroner's jury was suggestive of foul play. It was the opinion of the jury that murder was committed to get the woman out of the way.

Mrs. Kittie Jones, a young married woman, committed suicide by taking morphine on account of desertion by her husband. She had made several previous attempts.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, August 7.—The stock market today was more active, but also displayed a more healthy tone than during the past two days, although efforts to continue the decline were not although efforts to continue the decline were not wanting. There was, however, no material recovery and lower prices were marked in some of the specialties heretofore untouched by the downward movement. There was no lack of effort to get the market down farther in the forenoon, but it was met with such vigorous resistance that it was soon given up, and when that happened the market returned to its old condition of dullness, with slowly appreciating values. First prices were fractionally higher than last night's figures, and there was some buying for London account, besides evident efforts by Chicago sellers of the past few days to recover. There was less stress laid upon the shortage of crops, therefore, the news of this section was of a more peaceful character. The local contingent, however, was news of this section was of a character. The local contingent, however, was character. The local contingent and the market was character. The local contingent, however, was active in depressing prices and the market was given an irregular and feverish tone, which lasted throughout the day. There was little effect, however, except in some of the specialties, like Tennessee Coal, Chicago Gas and Chesapeake and Ohio first preferred. Sugar was sold down in the early dealings, but later recovered about all of the loss. The pressure was severe upon A tohless. the loss. The pressure was severe upon Atchison, Missouri Pacific and St. Paul, but neither suffered alissouri Facilic and St. Paul, but neither suffered particularly. The close was dull, but firm, and generally at about first prices. Final changes were generally small fractional advances. Sales aggregated 167,000 shares of listed and 57,000 un-othing doing.

The following are the closing que ture cotton in New Orleans today:

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, August 7—[Special.]—The Liverpoo market rather disappointed the bulls here today.

Futures there were 1-64d lower, and spot sales only 8,000 bales. Receipts of new cotton at Galveston are 33 bales. The trading here, while rather more are 33 bales. The trading here, while rather more active, has been mainly centered upon August, which closes some 6 points higher than yesterday. The conspicuous buying of a prominent English house has been the feature, and their purchases of August—aggregating, it is assumed, something over 1,000 bales—are thought to have been made against some sales for export not yet announced. One new bale of cotton has been received at August, which is two weeks earlier than last year, but all advices are that New Orleans shorts continue to cover the whole country for new cotton, thue to cover the whole country for new cotton, and there seems to be very little immediate prospect of getting any cotton here. Generous rains are reported throughout Texas, and crop prospects continue to be regarded as brilliant. Unless Liverpool is much lower tomorrow we think fair to expect higher prices here, as the shorts are pretty well alarmed.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, August 7—Wheat—An easier feeling existed today, and the advance of yesterday was lost. The market was governed mainly by speculative influences. The northwest was reported as selling, and foreigners also sold for future delivery. The market opened at about the same as yesterday's closing to a shade less, but became weak, and prices declined with only slight fluctuations 11/4@ 11/4c for September and 11/4c for December, rallied slightly, prices advancing %c, again eased off, declining 1%c and closed about 13%@1%c lower than cuning 1%c and closed about 1%c 1%c lower than yesterday's closing figures.

Corn—A good general speculative trade was witnessed in this market. The feeling prevailing was a little unsettled, the market ruling firm early, but easier as the day advanced. A prominent railroad official states that corn in Iowa and Illinois, and generally west of the Missouri river, will be a fair crop; the eastern half of Kansas and Nebraska will be very moderate and the western half of these states practically nothing. The Cincinnati Price Current estimates the crop at 1600 million bushels, or about 500 million bushels short of last year. The market comend 3.00 kg better than the year. The market opened 34@11/4c better than the elosing prices of yesterday, was firm for a time, then ruled easier, and prices receded 2%@2%c, rallied some, ruled steady and closed %@%c lower than yesterday.

Oats were fairly active but weaker and lower, but exhibited more steadiness than yesterday. The opening was unsettled and 16% thinker. A weaker feeling developed, and was increased by the decline in wheat and corn, and prices receded 161% from the highest figures, but rallied slightly, and the market closed steady at nearly inside prices and 16% 10 tower than yesterday.

Mess pork—A fairly active trade was reported. Sales were made at 20@25c advance at the opening, but later in the day a general reduction of 50 25c.

Sales were made at 20,225c advance at the opening, but later in the day a general reduction of 50,855c was submitted to. Toward the close prices rallied 52,00c, and the market closed quiet.

Lard—The demand was active early, and prices ruled 2½,65c higher, but was followed by a decline of 15,25c. Near the close prices rallied slightly, but the market closed quiet.

Short ribs—The demand was onits active carly.

Short ribs-The demand was quite active early, and sales were made at 17½@20c advance in prices.

A reduction of 22½@25c followed. The market rallied slightly and closed rather steady.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 1, 1890.—Mr. J. C. S. Timberlake, New Holland.—Dear Sir: In reply to your request, it gives me pleasure to state that I regard the water of New Holland Springs as containing in its analysis, the very best properties for the relief of teething children. My experience with its efficacy in the past is unquestionable. Aside from the water of the spring, the atmosphere and surroundings are most desirable. Yours truly, R. B. RIDLEY, M. D.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 9, 1890.—Mr. J. C. S. Timberiake, Gainesville, Ga.—Dear Sir: I consider New Holland Springs the best place in Georgia for children. I have reached this opinion from having my own children there, and from seeing the children of others brought there in the man delicate condition rapidly improve.
